2024 NFL DRAFT GUIDE

By:Russell Brown

Another year, another draft guide in the books! I want to start this guide off by dedicating this project to my mother. While I tend to keep my personal life, well, personal, I feel like it's only right to show all of my love and support for her. Recently, her health has started to decline and I'm unsure how things will be for my family and I when we get to the week of the NFL Draft. I will continue to pray that she fully recovers and is able to read through this guide like she has in the past. I love you mom.

Next, I want to give a thank you to my wife and son. They are always so supportive of this project and everything that comes with covering the NFL Draft. From live streams to radio, they are always on the other side of the closed doors waiting to ask me how every single show went. Meanwhile, I just love watching tape with my son. He learns about these players at the same time I'm learning about them and it's just an absolute blast. Lastly, my wife is a rockstar. She just is. She makes all of this happen and without her help, none of this is possible.

Moving on from all of that, this was my first year covering the Detroit Lions for the LionsWire with USA Today and it was absolutely awesome. I learn so much every day from the managing editor of the site, Jeff Risdon. He does a phenomenal job and I look forward to covering the Lions again this season with him and the team. Yes folks, that means more film breakdowns. Also, it was my first year helping with coverage of the Lions and they had their best season in over 30+ years. You're welcome, Detroit!

Lastly, I want to give a thank you to the great staff at FantasyPros and BettingPros. From Derek, Blaine, Thor, Mike and everyone in between, they have all played a part in my growth in the NFL Draft space. I appreciate them for giving me opportunities and the platform to talk about the draft and the betting market in football. I look forward to doing even more with them this upcoming season!

During previous NFL Draft Guides that I've done, there have been hundreds of people that reach out every year and ask if they can Venmo or PayPal me a few bucks for my hard work on the draft guide. While I appreciate the kind words, please donate that money to people who are in need.

For example, the men and women that have served our country deserve it much more than me. I watch football and write words about it – our veterans have helped protect and serve our country. They're the real heroes so please support them. You can help by donating to the Wounded Warriors Project:

https://support.woundedwarriorproject.org/default.aspx?tsid=10043

In addition to the Wounded Warriors Project, I'd like for everyone to also consider donating money to the COPD Foundation. As I recently mentioned, my mother's health has started to decline and COPD was part of her diagnosis. The contributions you make transform the lives of over 300 million people worldwide living with COPD and related lung conditions. By giving to the COPD Foundation, you help improve prevention, extend access to effective treatments, and provide critical human connection to people struggling to breathe every day.

To some, this is just a draft guide but for me it's so much more. I am so passionate about the NFL Draft, studying these players and providing the most accurate analysis possible. While breaking down film, I work a full-time job outside of this field and it takes up a good 50 hours of my week. I coach football in the summer and fall. Maybe writing about football never becomes full-time or maybe it will. One thing is for sure, I'll never stop working towards making that dream come true. Thank you for joining me on the ride now let's continue to enjoy the journey! Here's my 2024 NFL Draft Guide with 101 players having in-depth scouting reports, rankings and draft grades! Enjoy and thank you all for the continued support!

MARVIN HARRISON JR

WR | OHIO STATE
ROUND GRADE | 1ST ROUND

PRE-DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'4"

Weight: 205 lbs

Class: Junior

STRENGTHS

- Tremendous lateral movement skills for a player of his size.
- Quick feet with the hip fluidity needed to change direction.
- Pacing in his routes is great for a player of his size.
- Versatile enough to play inside or outside.
- Route running ability allows him to win at all three levels of the field.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs to get stronger so he can create after the catch and win against more physical defenders.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Harrison Jr., is one of the few players in this draft that appears to be a "no-brainer" for NFL teams. Harrison Jr., has the size and fluidity needed to be a successful number one receiver for a team. He's the type of player you build your franchise around, specifically your offense. Whether he's playing inside or outside, he can win at all three levels of the field . The pacing of his routes are terrific and he should be a high impact player early in his career.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from St. Joseph's Prep School in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. While he had offers to schools to a plethora of schools such as Notre Dame, Penn State and others, he committed to Ohio State. In addition to high school football, he also played high school basketball. He is the son of Dawne Avery and Marvin Harvinson Sr., and has a younger brother, Jett. His father, Marvin, played 13-years in the NFL for the Indianapolis Colts and is in the NFL Hall of Fame.

CALEB WILLIAMS

QB | USC
ROUND GRADE | 1ST ROUND

PRE-DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'1"

Weight: 214 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 32"

Hand Size: 9 ¾"

STRENGTHS

- As effective as any quarterback to operate off-script.
- Steps up into the pocket and athleticism helps him extend plays with just one or two additional steps.
- No issues when throwing from different arm angles and arm slots.
- Has the desired mobility to extend plays and run in the open field.
- Doesn't always need a clean platform to make NFL calibers throws.
- Has the desired arm strength to make throws at all three levels of the field.

WEAKNESSES

- Gets caught staring down his initial read.
- Will try to do too much – just needs to throw the ball away sometimes.
- Chooses not to run the ball and opts for attempting a more difficult throw.

OVERALL PROJECTION

When teams look to identify potential superstar caliber quarterbacks, Caleb Williams has the desired skill-set to become that type of player for an organization. He's just as effective as a player to operate off-script as he is to operate in-rhythm and on-script. Much of his style as a quarterback is in resemblance to playing football in the backyard. Able to throw from different arm angles and arm slots, he's able to get the football from point A to point B anyway he chooses. There are times that he opts for a more difficult throw rather than just taking what the defense is giving him. From there he will look to force throws which lead to turnover-worthy plays. He's best suited for an NFL offense that features his elite arm talent while being able to spread the football around to its playmakers. He has the potential to be one of the best players from this class.

PLAYER NOTES

Was the number one ranked recruit in the country (per 24/7 Sports) coming out of Gonzaga High School in Washington, D.C. Despite having offers to a plethora of schools, he committed to Oklahoma. After one season with the Sooners, he transferred to USC. Started 33 games in his collegiate career. Won the Heisman Trophy in 2022 and was the AP College Football Player of the Year in 2022. Finished his collegiate career with over 10,000 total yards and 120 total touchdowns.

MALIK NABERS

WR | LSU
ROUND GRADE | 1ST ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'0"

Weight: 200 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 31 ⅜"

Hand Size: 9 ⅞"

40-Yard Dash: 4.38 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.56 seconds

Vertical Jump: 42"

Broad: Jump: 10' 9"

STRENGTHS

- Always on the go – he plays like the energizer bunny.
- Heavily used as the motion-man for the LSU offense. Should help him create mismatches in the NFL.
- Runs his routes with a great pace and is able to separate consistently from that.
- Has great run after-the-catch ability.
- Great accelerator after the catch – will fly right past defenders.
- Wins with fluid routes and is able to accelerate and separate off double moves.
- Excels in the short areas of the field with screens, comebacks and hitch routes.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs to do a better job attacking the football.
- At his best when he gets a free release. Could get displaced off his route from press-man.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Able to play anywhere on the field, Malik Nabers is projected to be a plug-and-play receiver that should produce from day one in the NFL. He's an explosive playmaker that never stops moving. Whether it's pre-snap motion or being able to run after the catch, he was a difference maker for Jayden Daniels and the LSU offense. One of the best receivers in the draft to execute double-moves, he consistently makes defenders regret biting on the first move. When the ball is in the air, he'll need to attack it more consistently. Nabers does have the speed that's needed to take the top off a defense but overall, he's going to feast in the short and intermediate areas of the field for an offense.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Southside High School in Youngsville, Louisiana. While he had offers to every top school in the country such as Auburn, Oregon and others, he ended up flipping his commitment from Mississippi State to LSU. In addition to football, he played basketball and ran track. He did not play football his senior year because he transferred from Comeaux High School to Southside High School. Will be 21-years old in July. His uncle, Gabe, played for Florida State and the Los Angeles Chargers.

JOE ALT

OT | NOTRE DAME
ROUND GRADE | 1ST ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'9"

Weight: 321 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 34 ¼"

Hand Size: 10"

40-Yard Dash: 5.05 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.73 seconds

Vertical Jump: 28"

Broad Jump: 9' 4"

STRENGTHS

- Flexible tackle with fluid movement within his lower half.
- Has great length for the position. Locks out defenders consistently due to his arm length.
- Shows the ability to handle blitzes and line stunts from defenders.
- Able to pull and get out in space – fluid mover in space.
- Always plays under control and keeps his pad level down.
- Efficient run-blocker that walls off defenders to create rushing lanes.

WEAKNESSES

- Hand placement tends to be too high or wide.
- Overcompensates his size in his 3-point stance and it forces him to lunge rather than sit.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Not even 21-years old yet, Joe Alt looks like he's been playing in the NFL for years already. He's an experienced prospect that has made 33 straight starts at Notre Dame. He's a long offensive tackle that has a fluid and flexible lower half. His long arms allow him to lockout defenders consistently in both the run and pass game. Meanwhile, his athleticism allows him to get out in space efficiently when pulling. Playing as a smooth technician that's always under control, he should become a plug-and-play tackle as a top-10 pick in the NFL Draft.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Totino Grace High School in North Oaks, Minnesota. He had offers from Iowa, Minnesota and others but ended up committing to Notre Dame. As a junior in high school, he played TE & DE. He had 17 receptions for 143 yards. In addition to football, he also played basketball. Averaged 7.9 PPG in basketball his junior year. His father, John, played offensive line at Iowa and was a first round pick (21st overall) to the Kansas City Chiefs in the 1984 NFL Draft. His brother, Mark, played college hockey at Minnesota before being a 2nd round pick to the Carolina Hurricanes in 2010. Made 33 consecutive starts at Notre Dame.

BROCK BOWERS

TE | GEORGIA
ROUND GRADE | 1ST ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'3"

Weight: 243 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 32 ¾"

Hand Size: 9 ¾"

STRENGTHS

- Versatile chess piece that can play anywhere on the field.
- Fluid route runner that runs with a good pace.
- Makes great adjustments on the football – makes some acrobatic catches in the open field.
- Has great run after-the-catch ability.
- Will win at all three levels of the field for an offense.

WEAKNESSES

- Good technique but needs to get stronger when playing in-line and run blocking.
- Could get covered up by bigger and more physical defenders on contested catches.
- Had tightrope surgery on a high ankle sprain in 2023 – missed 4 games.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Bowers enters the NFL as the top tight end from this class. He's a terrific pass-catcher that can play just about anywhere on the field for an offense. Fluid as a route runner, he plays with a great pace and is able to produce yards after-the-catch on a consistent basis. There was trust in the Georgia offense to just throw the football his way and he'll find a way to come down with it and I think the same thing could happen in the NFL. He'll need to get stronger and obviously, he'll need to stay healthy but in a passing league, Bowers projects as a day one starter with the ability to develop into one of the best players at his position in the next two or three years.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Napa High School in Napa, California. He had offers from schools such as LSU, Penn State and others but he committed to Georgia. In addition to football, he also played basketball. His father, Warren, played center on the Utah State football team. His mother, DeAnna, was an All-American softball player at Utah State. His sister, Brianna, played softball at Sacramento State.

JAYDEN DANIELS

QB | LSU
ROUND GRADE | 1ST ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'4"

Weight: 210 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 32 ½"

Hand Size: 9 ⅜"

STRENGTHS

- Tremendous mobility - can extend beyond the pocket with ease.
- Will be able to extend plays and create big plays when operating off-script.
- Ball jumps out of his hand with a flick of the wrist.
- Stands tall in the pocket and remains calm and patient on his reads – shows good toughness in the pocket.
- Throws deep with good touch and anticipation.

WEAKNESSES

- Thinner body frame brings up questions about durability.
- Forces some throws and ball placement suffers from it.
- Hesitation on throws to the middle of the field forces bad passes.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Daniels enters the NFL as an experienced starter at the college level with 56 career starts. He's shown substantial growth as a player in the last two seasons and it feels like he could even get better at the next level. His mobility will be a weapon for an OC and he should be able to extend plays with his legs on a consistent basis. Standing tall in the pocket, he shows the desired toughness to withstand pressure and contact despite his wiry frame. Outside of his mobility, his consistency with his deep touch and anticipation is similar to what we saw from C.J. Stroud last year. The hope is that he can have that same type of impact for a team in year one in a vertical passing attack out of shotgun while mixing in RPO's and designed QB runs.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Cajon High School in San Bernardino, CA. While he had offers to schools such as UCLA, Alabama and others, he committed to Arizona State. In addition to football, he also competed in track and field in high school. His PR for the 100-meter dash was 11.37 seconds. After 29 games with the Sun Devils, he transferred to LSU, where he played 26 games for the Tigers. Won the Heisman Trophy in 2023 and was the 2023 SEC Offensive Player of the Year. Transferred to LSU in 2022. Will be 24-years old in December.

DRAKE MAYE

QB | NORTH CAROLINA
ROUND GRADE | 1ST ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'4"

Weight: 227 lbs

Class: Sophomore (RS)

Arm Length: 32 ¼"

Hand Size: 9 ⅛"

STRENGTHS

- Throws from different arm angles.
- Has desired size and mobility from the position.
- Tough runner in the open field.
- Makes tough throws look easy when having to operate off-script.
- Fits a number of passes into tight windows consistently.
- Throws with plenty of velocity and has the arm strength needed to push the ball downfield.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs to remain patient in the pocket and let it develop. Will take it and run before going through his reads and progressions.
- Will try to do too much by forcing bad throws into non-existent throwing windows.
- Could get quicker and more efficient with the way he processes – can get stuck on initial reads.

OVERALL PROJECTION

One of the most talented passers in the draft, Maye has the prototypical size and desired mobility for today's game. Far from perfect, he's got to improve on his post-snap reads and remain patient within those reads. There's many instances where he'll evade the pocket before it develops. However, he's a tough runner and he shows that he can fit passes into tight windows consistently due to his arm strength. That arm strength allows him to make any throw on the field, even when he's off-platform. Maye checks a lot of boxes for teams looking for a franchise quarterback.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 5-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Myers Park in Charlotte, North Carolina. He had offers to the top schools across the country such as Alabama, Michigan and Clemson. While he committed to Alabama, he ended up flipping his commitment to North Carolina. In addition to playing football in high school, he also played basketball. As a junior, he averaged 16.1 PPG and 11.3 RPG. He's started 25 games over the last two seasons. His father, Mark, played football at UNC from 1983 to 1988. He's the youngest of four boys (all student-athletes at UNC) in the family. Will be 22-years old on August 30th.

TALIESE FUAGA

OT | OREGON STATE
ROUND GRADE | 1ST ROUND

PRE-DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'6"

Weight: 324 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 33 ⅛"

Hand Size: 10 ⅛"

40-Yard Dash: 5.13 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.77 seconds

Vertical Jump: 32"

Broad Jump: 9' 3"

STRENGTHS

- Fluid lower half with powerful hands that strike quickly.
- No wasted movement in pass protection.
- Physically displaces defenders in the run game.
- Has shown great play strength with desired length needed to drive and steer defenders.
- Quick feet that follow underneath him to help drive and climb in the run game.
- Pad level remains low on contact.
- No issues getting out in space when pulling.

WEAKNESSES

- Outside hand tends to hit the back of defenders.
- Opens hips against speed rushers in pass protection at times.

OVERALL PROJECTION

One of the easier evaluations in this draft is Fuaga from Oregon State. He springs into action with quick feet and a physical demeanor that is rarely matched by the opposition. He's got a flexible lower half that helps him drop his pad level in both the run and pass game. While his hands do hit wide, he makes up for it with his play strength and ability to anchor. Best suited in a zone scheme, he has the desired athletic ability needed to operate in space and to create rushing lanes at the second level. Looking like a plug-and-play tackle, he should be able to step in and play immediately.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Mount Tacoma High School in Tacoma, WA. While he had offers to schools such as Oregon, USC and others, he committed to Oregon State. He's got 25 starts over the last two seasons. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

ROME ODUNZE

WR | WASHINGTON
ROUND GRADE | 1ST ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'2 ⅞"

Weight: 212 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 32 ¼"

Hand Size: 9 ¼"

40-Yard Dash: 4.45 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.52 seconds

Vertical Jump: 39"

3-Cone Drill: 6.88 seconds

STRENGTHS

- Runs well for a player of his size.
- Plays with great physicality for the position.
- Superb body control and is able to adjust and compete on 50/50 throws.
- Fluid mover in space and when running routes.
- Praised for his leadership – was a team captain for the Huskies.
- Consistently catches away from his body.
- Finds the football and hauls it in through contact.

WEAKNESSES

- Not as sharp or crisp of a route runner as others.
- Average burst and explosiveness for the position.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Odunze is about as talented as they come for wide receivers entering the NFL. He's got great size to be an 'X' receiver but he's athletic enough to move around for an offense. Playing with great physicality, he's able to withstand contact and run through defenders. Consistently catching the ball away from his frame, Odunze has been able to produce at a high-level for three straight seasons. He's got the athletic ability to run vertically but he should be a highly targeted pass-catcher at all three levels of the field for an offense. Part of the next wave of talent at the wide receiver position, there's potential for him to be a number one receiver right away.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Bishop Gorman High School in Las Vegas, Nevada. He had offers to schools such as UCLA, Oklahoma and others but ended up committing to Washington. In addition to football, he also was on the track and field team in high school. His PR for the 100-meter dash was 10.67 seconds. Had a broken collarbone his sophomore year of high school and it limited him to four games. Named the Gatorade Player of the Year for Nevada in 2019. Will be 22-years old in June.

Broad: Jump: 9'1"

STRENGTHS

- Incredibly strong and powerful tackle that moves defenders with ease.
- Has a strong lower half and is able to anchor consistently.
- Length allows him to lockout and steer defenders.
- Strong hands allow him to clamp onto defenders.
- Athletic enough to combo block and climb to the second level to seal off defenders.
- Hasn't given up a sack in his collegiate career.

WEAKNESSES

- Despite having great length, he doesn't always lockout defenders consistently.
- Shows a tendency of leaning on defenders rather than driving them out of a gap when run blocking.
- Lower half didn't look as quick in 2023 compared to 2022.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Projected to be a left tackle in the NFL, Fashanu has the desired size and strength for the position. He's got good length and is strong enough to anchor against more powerful defenders. The combination of length and grip strength will allow him to steer and displace defenders but he'll need to become more consistent when locking out defenders. Suffering an injury in 2022 appeared to have slowed Fashanu down some in this past season but the potential for him to be a franchise left tackle is there. Defenders will struggle to go through him and will have to find creative ways to get around him at the next level.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Gonzaga High School in Washington, D.C. While he had offers to schools such as Ohio State, Alabama and others, he committed to Penn State. In addition to playing football in high school, he also played basketball. Started 20 games over the last two seasons for Penn State. Suffered an undisclosed injury that limited him to 8 games in 2022. Has been nominated to the Dean's List twice in his college career.

DALLAS TURNER

EDGE | ALABAMA
ROUND GRADE | 1ST ROUND

PRE-DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'3"

Weight: 247 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 34 ⅜"

Hand Size: 9 ⅞"

40-Yard Dash: 4.46 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.54 seconds

Vertical Jump: 40.5"

Broad Jump: 10' 7"

STRENGTHS

- Plays with active feet and active hands.
- Long arms really jump off the screen – uses long arms to create plenty of separation.
- Great closing speed to the backfield and quarterback.
- Disruptive against the run with good speed off-the-edge and effort to close.
- Has shown that he can drop into coverage as a zone defender.

WEAKNESSES

- Will need to get stronger when taking on blocks and fighting pressure with pressure.
- Would like to see an established counter move(s) in his repertoire.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Turner is the best defensive prospect in the draft this year. He's an active pass rusher due to his speed and quick hands but he's shown that he can be successful when bull-rushing. There's enough power and speed behind him to create enough havoc in the backfield. Best suited as a standup pass-rusher, he's able to help generate pressure, sniff out runs with good backside pursuit and he's shown that he can drop into the flats, when needed. He'll be at his best in the NFL when he's able to pin his ears back, turn the corner and bend to the quarterback. Look for him to go early in the first round.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 5-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from St. Thomas Aquinas High School in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. He had offers from every top school in the country such as Notre Dame, Clemson, Michigan and others but he committed to Alabama. His position coach in high school was Jason Taylor. In addition to football, he also played basketball in high school. His father, Deion, played college basketball at Florida A&M and spent 12 years playing professionally on the international circuit. Turner had off-season surgery on an undisclosed injury prior to the 2023 season.

J.C. LATHAM

OT | ALABAMA
ROUND GRADE | 1ST ROUND

PRE-DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'6"

Weight: 342 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 35 ⅛"

Hand Size: 11"

STRENGTHS

- Elite grip strength – is able to clamp and move defenders with ease due to hand strength.
- Has a strong lower half that helps him drive defenders in the run game.
- Timely punches that are powerful and able to knock defenders back.
- Flexible lower half and is able to transfer his weight from his post foot to his set foot.
- Plays with good patience and his hands are always ready to attack.

WEAKNESSES

- Foot speed could get tested against faster defenders.
- Leads with head down and gives up rushes inside when defenders cross his face .
- Doesn't alway sustain his blocks in run game due to his base being too wide or by leading with his head down.

OVERALL PROJECTION

There's not many OL that can put on 25 pounds (335 to 360) and still move the way that Latham does. He's a talented OL that has the desired flexibility and movement skills to play tackle in the NFL. The power behind his hands helps him steer and drive defenders consistently in the run game. In pass protection, he plays with good patience and he strikes defenders in a timely manner. He could move to guard but his tape is translatable to being a successful right tackle for a team. Much of that is due to his combination of size, strength and power at the position.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 5-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from the IMG Academy in Bradenton, FL. Despite having offers from schools such as Ohio State, LSU but he committed to Alabama. Prior to playing football for IMG, he was at Catholic Memorial High School in Waukesha, Wisconsin. Latham was wearing size 18 shoes in HS. Also played basketball and was on the track team. Ran a 60-yard dash in 8.35 seconds and as a freshman, his PR in the shot put was 41'4.. High school teammates with Michigan QB J.J. McCarthy. Played in 41 career games for the Crimson Tide and started 27 games over the last two seasons.

JARED VERSE

ROUND GRADE | 1ST ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'4"

Weight: 254 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 33 ½"

Hand Size: 9 ⅞"

40-Yard Dash: 4.58 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.60 seconds

Vertical Jump: 35"

Broad Jump: 10' 7"

STRENGTHS

- Has a great blend of power and speed for the position.
- Uses a long-arm move to generate pressure and disrupt plays in the backfield.
- Shows that he can rush from 2-point and 3-point stances consistently.
- Fluid lower half with the ability to bend and chase against the run.
- Explosive first step with quick hands from the start.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs to improve form tackling – too many times he slips off contact.
- Counter moves need development at the next level.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Better than given credit for, Verse has the tools to develop into one of the best defensive players in this draft. He plays with more power than speed but the blend of the two is a huge perk to his game. He's got good length for the position and is able to rush comfortably from multiple alignments. He'll need to improve his form when tackling and I'd like for him to have an effective go-to counter move but I think that can all improve at the next level. His speed-to-power will help make an immediate impact but whichever team drafts him in the first round is getting a premier edge rusher that's just starting to scratch the surface.

PLAYER NOTES

Was lightly recruited coming out of Central Columbia High School in Bloomsburg, PA. He was recruited to play tight end rather than defensive end. Played at Albany for 3 years prior to transferring to Florida State. Was a TE that moved to DE and he added 40 pounds to his frame. Transferred to FSU after the 2021 season and started 22 games for the Seminoles. In addition to football, Verse also played basketball as a center and was on the track and field team in high school. His PR for the 100-meter dash was 11.34 seconds.

TERRION ARNOLD

CB | ALABAMA
ROUND GRADE | 1ST ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'0"

Weight: 189 lbs

Class: Sophomore (RS)

Arm Length: 31 ⅝"

Hand Size: 8 ⅞"

40-Yard Dash: 4.50 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.54 seconds

Vertical Jump: 37"

Broad Jump: 10' 9"

STRENGTHS

- Physical defender that embraces contact from the opposition.
- Quick feet and fluid hips to open and run with receivers.
- Good burst to close passing windows to receivers.
- Plays square on blockers and will work outside-in to assist with run support.
- Always competitive at the catch point.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs to get in better positioning while playing in zone or off-man coverage.
- Technique within his lower body gets wild – leads to balance concerns.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Arnold enters the NFL with the projection of being a number one cornerback. Defenses searching for a corner that excels in man coverage will love the talent possessed by Arnold. He plays physical and loves contact and competition from the opposition. His aggressiveness will get him trouble as it appears to cause his technique to get wild or it'll take him out of position. But his fluidity, effort and ability to press and lockdown receivers is encouraging for his development in the NFL.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 5-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from John Paul II Catholic High School in Tallahassee, Florida. He had offers from a plethora of top schools such as Florida, Georgia and others but he committed to Alabama. In addition to football, he played basketball and was on the track and field team in high school. As a junior, he averaged 8.8 PPG and 4 RPG in basketball. His PR for the 200-meter dash was 23.92 seconds. Ran the 3-cone drill in 6.65 seconds at the Alabama Pro Day.

LAIATU LATU

EDGE | UCLA
ROUND GRADE | 1ST ROUND
PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'5"

Weight: 259 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 32 ⅝"

Hand Size: 9 ⅝"

40-Yard Dash: 4.64 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.62 seconds

Vertical Jump: 32"

Broad Jump: 9' 8"

STRENGTHS

- Effective club-swim move when rushing the passer but has a repertoire of moves such as cross-chop, spin and more.
- Provides alignment versatility with pass-rush success anywhere on the defensive line.
- Good overall size and power to bull-rush the opposition.
- Works hands consistently and plays with good leverage against the run.

WEAKNESSES

- Backside pursuit on certain run plays could improve.
- Medical history is a concern with a neck injury that required surgery.
- Lower body stiffness and pad level remains high on certain reps against the run.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Latu is one of the best pure pass rushers in this year's draft. He uses a plethora of moves to get to the quarterback and he's got the desired size, speed and length for the position. There are times where he'll get chest-to-chest with an offensive lineman or raise his pad level to find the ball carrier in the run game. That will need to be improved but as a pass-rusher, he can certainly do that from day one. His alignment versatility will get him on the field for a variety of defensive line packages and he should find success wherever he's aligned. If he can stay healthy, he could be the best edge rusher to come from this class.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Jesuit High School in Carmichael, California. He had offers from schools such as Notre Dame and Alabama but he ended up committing to Washington. Played in 12 games for the Huskies before having to medically retire due to neck injuries that required surgery. Transferred to UCLA after getting medically cleared. Played in 25 games for the Bruins. Competed in the 2024 Senior Bowl.

JER'ZHAN "JOHNNY" NEWTON

IDL | ILLINOIS
ROUND GRADE | 1ST ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'2"

Weight: 304 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 32 ⅜"

Hand Size: 9 ½"

STRENGTHS

- Explosive first-step gives him a jump on the opposition.
- Provides alignment versatility with success playing in multiple spots across the defensive line.
- Great lateral quickness to stop and change direction.
- Displays a good motor to chase down running backs with backside pursuit.
- Has long enough arms to squeeze blocks down and clog rushing lanes.

WEAKNESSES

- Hands could become faster – gets caught staring into the backfield.
- Path to the backfield needs to become tighter. Will drift and it becomes much easier to seal him off.
- At times, he will pop-up out of his stance and become much easier to block.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Projected to play as a 3-technique in the NFL, I could see scenarios where Newton plays just about everywhere on a defensive line. He's got alignment versatility with an explosive first step to beat anyone he's matched up against. His lateral quickness to defeat interior lineman consistently could create mismatches on just about every single snap . At the next level, he'll need to get a touch stronger against the run but that should come with time. To start his career, he should be an impact player right away as a pass rusher and it shouldn't be a surprise if he develops into a three-down player.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Clearwater Central Catholic High School in Clearwater, Florida. He had offers to schools such as Iowa, Florida State and even committed to Maryland but flipped his commitment to Illinois. In high school, he also played running back for the football team. In addition to football, he was also on the basketball team. He has four brothers (Jervon, Jerquan, Jerjuan and Jershaun). His brothers, Jervon and Jerquan, played football at West Florida. His brother, Jerjuan, plays receiver at Toledo. Cousin is Pro Wells and he played football at TCU. Was a team captain in 2023. Will be 22-years old in August. Suffered a foot injury in 2023 that required surgery – played through the injury.

Hand Size: 9 ¼"

40-Yard Dash: 4.33 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.51 seconds

Vertical Jump: 38"

Broad Jump: 10' 2"

STRENGTHS

- Fluid athlete with some of the best click-close ability in the class.
- Baits quarterbacks into passing windows that don't exist due to his ability to close on the football.
- Competes at the catch point by playing through the hands of the receiver consistently.
- Remains square and under control in his backpedal.
- Incredible ball skills and production for the position.

WEAKNESSES

- Plays with some hesitation on vertical routes that get him in poor position to play the receiver and/or the ball.
- Can get overly aggressive when trying to jump the route.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Mitchell may not have played against some of the juggernaut receivers that college football presents but don't question his ability. He can be a big time player for an NFL defense for the next decade. Playing consistently with quick feet, he's got the desired burst to click-and-close on receivers on the snap of a finger. He competes at the catch point and his production should leave teams no doubt with what type of player they can get on defense. Whether it be in man coverage or in zone coverage (ex: Cover 3), he should have little issue transitioning to the NFL.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Williston High School in Williston, Florida. He had offers from schools such as Florida Atlantic, Illinois and others but ended up committing to Toledo. In addition to football, he also was on the track and field team. His PR for the 100-meter dash was 10.86 seconds. He also was on the basketball team his junior year and in 22 games, he averaged 5.0 PPG. Finished his collegiate career as Toledo's all-time leader in career with 46 pass breakups. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

Hand Size: 10 ¼"

40-Yard Dash: 4.87 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.69 seconds

Vertical Jump: 33"

Broad Jump: 9' 3"

STRENGTHS

- Plays with quick hands and a fluid lower half.
- Displays great lateral quickness and is able to maneuver around defenders with ease.
- Explodes off the ball with low pad level.
- Executes a clean swim move to clear guards and centers.
- Versatile enough to play anywhere between the tackles and even played out of the backfield for the offense in the red-zone.

WEAKNESSES

- Smaller frame could create issues against double teams.
- Will get turned when he stops his feet on contact.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Murphy is an explosive athlete that has improved every season for the Longhorns and it feels like his best days are ahead of him. He's an explosive athlete with a fluid lower half and is able to penetrate gaps or beat interior offensive lineman in one-on-one situations. His power is surprising and he shows great effort on double teams but it still can be problematic for him. His athleticism gives defenses positional versatility from a 4i-technique to a nose tackle. Overall, he should easily find himself in rotation early in his career before earning himself a spot on top of a depth chart as a teams top defensive tackle.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from DeSoto High School in DeSoto, Texas. He had offers from Georgia, Texas Tech and other schools but ended up committing to Baylor before flipping to Texas. Played in 39 games with 16 starts. Was named the 2023 Big 12 Defensive Lineman of the Year.

TROY FAUTANU

OT | WASHINGTON
ROUND GRADE | LATE 1ST ROUND - EARLY 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'4"

Weight: 317 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 34 ½"

Hand Size: 9 ½"

40-Yard Dash: 5.01 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.71 seconds

Vertical Jump: 32.5"

Broad Jump: 9' 5"

STRENGTHS

- Operates with quick feet and quick hands.
- Shows good flexibility in his lower half to bring pad level down in pass protection.
- Flexible lower half allows clean weight transfers from post foot to set foot – helps with handling perimeter blitzes and line stunts.
- Plays aggressive and looks to finish blocks with a snatch-trap technique.
- Explosive athlete that gets out in space with a vengeance and will throw his body around.

WEAKNESSES

- Overly aggressive play leads to misplaced hand strikes and balance issues.
- Smaller frame could lead to issues against longer and more powerful edge rushers.

OVERALL PROJECTION

In the 2024 NFL Draft, Fautanu enters as one of the more fluid and explosive offensive lineman. He plays with quick feet and quick hands and it should lead to coaches trusting his ability to play tackle. He's a flexible and fluid athlete and consistently able to get out in space when pulling. Efficient in a zone-scheme, he displays the quickness needed to reach and get to the second level. There will be questions regarding his length and his anchor will get tested against more powerful defenders. But he does finish blocks in pass protection and he's shown the lower body movement needed to handle line stunts and blitzes. Teams could move him inside to play guard but it wouldn't be surprising if he found a spot at left tackle for whichever team drafts him.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Liberty High School in Henderson, Nevada. While he had offers to USC, Notre Dame and others, he committed to Washington. In addition to playing football in high school, Fautanu was a good volleyball player. His junior season, he had a serve % of 86.7, kill % of 56.4 and he had 65 total blocks. Prior to playing offensive line, he was a fullback. He competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

Hand Size: 9"

40-Yard Dash: 4.28 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.59 seconds

Vertical Jump: 36"

Broad Jump: 10' 7"

STRENGTHS

- Plays with quick fleet and has the desired fluidity to open his hips and run vertically.
- Uses his long arms to break up passes at the catch-point.
- Has the long speed to run in-stride with receivers and to recover in press-man.
- Shows great effort with backside pursuit.

WEAKNESSES

- Not consistent against the run – poor pad level.
- Play strength could get tested due to his thin frame.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Wiggins is a long-limbed defender that has the speed and fluidity to run consistently with receivers. Best suited to play press-man, he has experience playing off-man and zone coverage. However, he tends to give up too much cushion when playing in off-man and is at his best when playing press-man. While he plays with good physicality, he will need to get stronger and his thinner frame will get tested against the players he'll see in the NFL. Teams will value his speed, effort and playmaking ability and it should help him develop into a number one cornerback.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Westlake High School in Atlanta, Georgia. He had offers from top schools such as Alabama, Florida and others but he ended up committing to Clemson after flipping his commitment from LSU. In addition to football, he also played basketball in high school. Went to the same high school as A.J. Terrell. Will be 21-years old in August of his rookie season. Broad Jump:

STRENGTHS

- Will look to finish his blocks in the run game.
- Plays under control with clean feet and base.
- Great lateral quickness to get out in space and pull.
- Able to sit in pass protection and anchor against the rush.
- Versatile and athletic enough to play anywhere on the offensive line.

WEAKNESSES

- Long armed defenders could cause issues for him with resetting his hands.
- Hands could become faster when hitting a defender's chest plate. .

OVERALL PROJECTION

Barton is slated to be a plug-and-play starter in the NFL due to his technique and athletic ability. He displays great lateral quickness and shows little issues climbing to the second level or pulling. There's a good chance that he slides inside to guard or center in the NFL due to his arm length preventing him from resetting his hands on a consistent basis. That said, his footwork is clean in pass protection and he's able to anchor against stronger defenders. Offensive coordinators will look to run behind him as he's a strong finisher in the run game. With NFL coaching, there's Pro Bowl potential with Barton and I'd expect for him to be a long-time starter in the league.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Ravenwood High School in Brentwood, Tennessee. While he had offers from Michigan State and Boston College, he committed to Duke. In addition to football, he also played lacrosse. He started 5 games as a true freshman at center. Has started 34 straight games at left tackle before missing four games to end 2023 with an injury. Accepted an invite to the 2024 Senior Bowl but couldn't play due to injury.

Hand Size: 9"

40-Yard Dash: 4.34 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.52 seconds

Vertical Jump: 39 ½"

Broad Jump: 11' 4"

STRENGTHS

- Makes great adjustments on the football when it's in the air.
- Excels in the red-zone on 50/50 balls.
- Runs routes at a great pace.
- Moves well laterally for a player of his size.
- Whenever a big catch was needed, he was the guy.
- Has the ability to play inside and outside.
- Does a good job tracking the football.
- Shows good concentration along the sideline and in the corner of the end-zone.

WEAKNESSES

- Physical defenders can give him fits in press-man situations.
- There are times that he looks like he's going through the motions.
- Needs to become more consistent as a run blocker – especially when aligned in condensed formations.

OVERALL PROJECTION

I'm so intrigued by the flashes of brilliance and inconsistencies in the game of Adonai Mitchell. He's got the tools to be a true number one receiver due to his adjustments on the football and the pacing and fluidity of his routes. However, there are times that he struggles with press and some of his routes don't look nearly as good when he's not getting the football. With that, his size and speed will present challenges to defenders. Whoever ends up drafting Mitchell will be able to play him inside and outside of the formations but they'll consistently need to keep him involved for those flashes of brilliance to set an offense on fire.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Cane Ridge High School in Antioch, Tennessee. He had offers from schools around the country and originally committed to Ole Miss. However, he flipped his commitment to Georgia. After two seasons with the Bulldogs, he transferred to Texas. STRENGTHS

- Physical defender that loves to initiate contact.
- Shows good press-man ability.
- Has experience in both man and zone coverage.
- Reacts and closes quickly on the ball.
- Good overall tackler that triggers downhill with a vengeance.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs to get head around sooner when playing the ball in the air.
- Will get too physical/grabby in coverage.
- Can get beat on double moves once he commits to flipping hips in one direction.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Entering the NFL at only the age of 21, Lassiter shows plenty of potential to turn into a top cornerback for a defense. He's a physical defender that attacks the opposition every chance he gets. In coverage, he's shown consistency in man coverage but he also looks comfortable in zone coverage with Cover-3 responsibilities. He'll need to get his head around sooner in-coverage and that'll improve his production on the ball. Overall, there's much to be desired with the physical and athletic profile to be encouraged by Lassiter becoming a productive player in the NFL.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from American Christian High School in Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Despite offers to schools such as Oklahoma, Alabama and others, he committed to Georgia. In addition to football, he ran track in high school – PR in the 100m dash was 12.01 seconds. He also played baseball and basketball. Only 21-years old. Has 29 career starts for the Georgia defense.

Hand Size: 9 ¾"

40-Yard Dash: 4.33 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.5 seconds

Vertical Jump: 38 ½"

Broad: Jump: 10' 6"

STRENGTHS

- Long strided athlete that explodes upfield once the ball is snapped.
- Slot fade king.
- Has great tracking ability deep down the field.
- Makes good adjustments on the football.
- Threatens defense vertically from inside and outside alignments.

WEAKNESSES

- Lower body needs to get stronger to withstand the contact he will see in the NFL.
- Not as physical as you'd like for a player of his size.
- Concentration drops occur on tape.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Brian Thomas Jr is a long and athletic receiver that uses his speed and length to create separation consistently. He's able to sink his hips and get in and out of his routes efficiently. More of a vertical threat due to his ability to track the football, he could take the top off a defense with the tracking ability and deep speed he possesses. It's encouraging to see how fast he accelerates upfield once the ball snaps but he'll need to improve on the physicality he'll face in the NFL. The positional versatility he provides should get him on the field early in his career, especially out of the slot. Overall, Thomas Jr., has the tools needed to be a number one receiver for an offense. With some polishing, he should be able to take the next step in his career.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Walker High School in Walker, Louisiana. Talented basketball player that had offers to Florida, Texas A&M and others after scoring over 1,000 points in his basketball career. However, after receiving offers from Florida, Alabama and other top schools for football, he ended up committing to LSU for football. In addition to football and basketball, he also ran track in high school. His PR for the 100-meter dash was 11.23 seconds. Didn't start playing football until he was a sophomore in high school. In his first game, he caught four passes for 278 yards and three touchdowns. Athletic profile is oddly similar to Darrius Heyward-Bey.

Height: 5'11 ½"

Weight: 199 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 32"

Hand Size: 8 ½"

40-Yard Dash: 4.47 seconds

STRENGTHS

- Good press-man ability with timely punches and aggressiveness to redirect receivers.
- Attacks downhill and plays quickly on the perimeter against the run (i.e. vs. Tennessee).
- Displays good overall burst to close quickly on the football.
- Uses arm length to jam receivers and to disrupt passes at the catch point.
- Experienced on the perimeter in both man and zone coverage.

WEAKNESSES

- Doesn't always locate the football properly when it's in the air.
- Pad level rises in his backpedal and when taking on blocks.
- Long speed could get tested when playing press.

OVERALL PROJECTION

McKinstry has been a highly touted prospect since he was being recruited by Alabama and other top teams in the country. Best suited as a press-man corner, he does have experience and the knowledge to play between zone and man coverage. His arm length jumps off the screen and it helps him jam receivers at the line-of-scrimmage and it gives him an advantage at the catch point. Athletic enough to play anywhere, he seems destined to play outside for a defense. There are times where it feels like he's content with just going through the motions but if a team can tap into his ability, he has all of the tools to be a number one cornerback for a defense.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 5-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Pinson Valley High School in Pinson, Alabama. He had offers from all of the top schools such as Ohio State, Clemson and others but he committed to Alabama. In addition to football, he also played basketball in high school. Averaged 15.0 PPG and 5 RPG as a junior. Has a Jones fracture in a toe in his foot. First name is Ga'Quincy and he will be 22-years old in September.

JACKSON POWERS-JOHNSON

IOL | OREGON
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE-DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'3"

Weight: 328 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 32 ¼"

Hand Size: 9 ⅞"

Bench Press: 30 reps

Vertical Jump: 32"

Broad Jump: 8' 8"

STRENGTHS

- Plays stout against powerful defenders in the run game.
- Operates efficiently in space and plays with little hesitation in trying to hit someone.
- Strong hands – locks on defenders and steers them and drives them clear.
- Shows that he can excel on combo blocks or when climbing up to the second level.
- Walls off defenders and creates rushing lanes behind him.
- Versatile enough to play center or either guard spot.

WEAKNESSES

- Will pop straight up out of his stance.
- Plays with a forward lean – could lead to foot speed issues against faster defenders.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Powers-Johnson a.k.a. JPJ is a stronger interior lineman that is athletic enough to play at guard or center for an offense. His ability to pull and get in space is impressive due to his quickness and aggressive demeanor. Whether it be in gap or zone blocking schemes, JPJ excels in all areas of the field with his grip strength and ability to finish. His pad level will present challenges but the strength in his lower body helps him anchor and overcome most of those challenges. Projected to be a first round pick, it's hard to picture a scenario where he's not starting in year one for an NFL offense.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Corner Canyon High School in Draper, Utah. He had offers to schools such as Missouri, Nebraska and others but he committed soon after he visited Oregon. In addition to football, he also played baseball and was on the wrestling team. Played in 36 games in his college career with 13 starts at center. Won the 2023 Rimington Trophy as the top center in college football. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

J.J. MCCARTHY

QB | MICHIGAN
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND
PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'2 ½"

Weight: 219 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 31 ⅝"

Hand Size: 9"

3-Cone Drill: 6.82 seconds

20-Yard Shuttle: 4.23 seconds

STRENGTHS

- Tough quarterback that stands in the pocket despite facing pressure.
- Good mobility to create and extend plays.
- Does a nice job off RPOs – can hold it long enough to freeze or redirect defenders.
- Displays NFL-caliber throws by fitting passes into tight windows.
- Played in a pro-style offense at Michigan – should ease transition into the NFL.
- Takes what defenses give him – has no issues throwing quick and short passes.

WEAKNESSES

- Gets stuck on initial reads – especially when throwing to his left.
- Arm strength is questionable on deeper throws.
- Ball placement gets sporadic on throws to his left or throws that are dependant on timing

OVERALL PROJECTION

Teams looking for an efficient passer that gets better once he gets into rhythm, they should look no further than right here. Viewed as more of a game manager than a game changer, McCarthy is a talented passer that is tough as nails and has the desired mobility to create plays outside of the pocket. His tape doesn't feature elite arm strength being put on display constantly but he does a nice job fitting passes into tight windows. With McCarthy playing in a pro-style offense that featured him throwing off play-action and under center, his transition to learn and run an NFL offense should be easier. Especially once he gets his timing down on out and corner routes. There's potential for McCarthy to become a quality starter as an NFL quarterback.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) out of the IMG Academy. Despite having offers to schools such as Miami (FL), Texas A&M and others, he committed to Michigan. One of his reasons was because Ryan Day said, "Ohio State wouldn't add any other QB" and they ended up signing another QB. Grew up a fan of Ohio State. Prior to football, he played ice hockey. Started 28 games for Michigan and finished with a 27-1 record and won a National Championship.

TYLER GUYTON

OT | OKLAHOMA
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'8"

Weight: 322 lbs

Class: Junior (RS)

Arm Length: 34 ⅛"

Hand Size: 10 ¼"

40-Yard Dash: 5.19 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.76 seconds

Vertical Jump: 34.5"

Broad Jump: 8' 11"

STRENGTHS

- First step quickness is impressive for a player of his size.
- Plays with a flexible lower half and is able to step down or get in space with quick feet.
- Great length for the position – can lockout pass rushers with ease.
- Shows good weight transfer from his post foot to set foot with line stunts and blitzes.

WEAKNESSES

- Pad level needs work due to his height – tends to play too high, especially the run game.
- Core strength could improve to help him anchor faster and more consistently in pass protection.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Guyton may be more of a developmental prospect today but the tools are there for him to become a starting left or right tackle. He always seems to be under control and he plays with great patience when pass blocking. In the NFL, he'll need to get stronger and his pad level could use improvement but the quickness, lower body flexibility and ability to reset his hands are all encouraging. There's potential for him to be a day one pick and he could start right out of the gate for a team in need of a right tackle,

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Manor High School in Manor, Texas. In addition to football, he also played basketball in high school. He committed to TCU and spent two seasons with the Horned Frogs before transferring to Oklahoma. At TCU, he split time between offensive tackle and H-back. Became a starter at right tackle for the Sooners in 2023. Suffered a concussion in 2023 that limited him to 9 starts. Has 14 career starts between left and right tackle. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl. Will turn 22-years old in June.

KEON COLEMAN

WR | FLORIDA STATE
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'3 ¼"

Weight: 213 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 32 ⅛"

Hand Size: 9 ⅜"

40-Yard Dash: 4.61 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.54 seconds

Vertical Jump: 38"

Broad Jump: 10' 7"

STRENGTHS

- Makes great adjustments on the football when it's in the air.
- Has the desired ball skills to track and high-point the football – especially on 50/50 balls.
- Tracks the ball well and is able to go get it deep down the field.
- Works through contact off press and is able to withstand contact at the catch point.
- Used more frequently in the short areas of the field in 2023 – will be able to run after-the-catch.

WEAKNESSES

- Doesn't always throttle down to break on his routes – leads to the routes being rounded.
- More play speed than track speed in his game. Isn't going to create a ton of separation with that speed.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Coleman enters the NFL as an experienced starter in two different programs. He's built like a true 'X' receiver that can go up and get the football. Making great adjustments on the football, he can go up and get the football. Able to withstand contact after-the-catch and on contested catches, he's proven that you just need to get the football in his hands. When you do, good things tend to happen. Between his footwork and some stiffness in his hips, the routes run by him aren't as crisp as others but he could still find work in the middle of the field. Best suited to handle defenders in 1-on-1 situations, teams will draft Coleman to do just that. More play speed than track speed, there's potential for Coleman to blossom into a borderline WR1 for an offense.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Opelousas Catholic School in Opelousas, LA. He had offers for multiple sports from multiple schools such as Auburn, Georgia, USC and others. Originally, he committed to Kansas but flipped his commitment to Michigan State. In addition to football, he was also on the track and field team and played basketball in high school. He averaged 26 PPG as a junior and his PR for the 100-meter dash was 11.76 seconds. He spent two seasons with the Spartans and played in 22 career games with 12 starts. He also played in six games for the Spartans basketball team. After the 2022 season, he transferred to Florida State.

EDGERRIN COOPER

LB | TEXAS A&M
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'2"

Weight: 230 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 34"

Hand Size: 9 ¾"

40-Yard Dash: 4.51 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.54

Vertical Jump: 34.5"

Broad Jump: 9' 10"

STRENGTHS

- Will provide pass-rush ability due to his effectiveness when blitzing.
- Alignment versatility at the next level due to how he can produce by moving anywhere in the box.
- Great motor on every single snap – displays great speed in pursuit.
- Sifts through traffic and has a flexible lower half to change direction with ease.
- His game vs. Alabama was the best tape of any LB in the class.
- Shows good fluidity and knowledge of where to be in his coverage drops.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs to stay under control with his run fits.
- Plays high and exposes his chest to the opposition when finding the football.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Cooper is a high-level linebacker with the ability to start right away. Much of this is due to his relentless motor and ability to blitz and rush the passer. He's fluid in space and shows a flexible lower half to redirect his body towards the football. There's some hesitation with his coverage drops but he knows where to be and just has a knack for being by the ball. He'll need to work on his pad level and stay under control more in the box but there's much to be desired with his skill-set and ability to make an immediate impact for a defense.
PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Covington High School in Covington, LA. He had a plethora of offers from schools such as LSU, Miami (FL) and he was even committed to Oklahoma before flipping to Texas A&M. Played linebacker and running back in high school. Made 21 starts for the Aggies over the last 3 seasons.

XAVIER WORTHY

WR | TEXAS
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5' 11 ¼"

Weight: 165 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 31 ⅛"

Hand Size: 8 ¾"

40-Yard Dash: 4.21 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.49 seconds

Vertical Jump: 41"

Broad Jump: 10' 11"

STRENGTHS

- True speedster that has the ability to fly past defenders vertically.
- Plays much bigger and more physical for a player of his size.
- Works back to the quarterback consistently.
- Explosive after-the-catch and could be dynamite in the short areas of the field.
- Attacks the football when it's in the air – will look to highpoint the ball.
- Able to throttle down and run routes with conviction.
- Has the tracking ability needed to come down with passes deep downfield.

WEAKNESSES

- Thinner frame is concerning for the contact he will face in the NFL.
- Suffered injuries in consecutive seasons (broken hand and ankle sprain required walking boot).
- Can get displaced off his routes due to contact.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Teams will hesitate on where they value Xavier Worthy due to his thin frame but certain teams are going to fall in love with him due to his speed. He's a track star that can win at all three levels of the field. Much of this is due to how he tracks the ball deep down the field and his explosiveness and elusiveness in the short areas. Time will tell how he deals with contact from defenders in the NFL but he's shown on tape that he will throw his body around and put it all on the line. There's potential for Worthy to be a number one receiver in the NFL but he seems destined to move into the slot where he can be paired with another weapon to take some of the pressure off him to start his career.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Central East High School in Fresno, California. He had offers to schools such as Alabama, Texas A&M and others and he originally committed to Michigan. However, he flipped that commitment to Texas. Also competed in track and field and his PR in the 100-meter dash was 10.55 seconds. Set the NFL Scouting Combine record for fastest 40-yard dash in history at 4.21 seconds. He will turn 21-years old on the final day of the 2024 NFL Draft.

LADD MCCONKEY

WR | GEORGIA
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND
PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5'11 ⅝"

Weight: 186 lbs

Class: Junior (RS)

Arm Length: 30 ¼"

Hand Size: 8 ⅝"

40-Yard Dash: 4.39 seconds

Bench Press: 13 reps

Vertical Jump: 36"

Broad Jump: 10' 4"

STRENGTHS

- Gifted route runner that's as fluid as any receiver in the class this year.
- Dangerous release package that he can use to win anyway possible.
- Runs routes with a great pace and is able to win at all three levels of the field.
- Has the speed to threaten defenses vertically and run after-the-catch.
- Catches the ball consistently away from his body.

WEAKNESSES

- Battled through back and ankle injuries in 2023 – worth monitoring down the road.
- Will need to get stronger against press-man corners.
- Could be moved to a slot-only role in the NFL.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Appearing to be a plug-and-play starter for an NFL team, McConkey is one of the most fluid route runners in the draft. He's got a dominant release package that can put defenders in a blender. His releases cause defenders to misstep and it gives him the separation needed to get open consistently and create passing windows for quarterbacks. His speed will threaten defenses vertically but it'll also provide an offense some yards after-the-catch. His size will get questioned when faced with more physical defenders but on tape, McConkey looks like an immediate starter with early day two potential of being drafted.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from North Murray High School in Chatsworth, Georgia. As a recruit, he had offers to schools such as Vanderbilt, Army and others but chose Georgia. In addition to football, he also played varsity basketball as a point guard and was on the track and field team. Ran the 100-meter dash in 10.85 seconds. Played some quarterback in high school. Was going to commit to University of Tennessee at Chattanooga but jumped on the offer from Georgia. Won two National Championships with Georgia. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

AMARIUS MIMS

OT | GEORGIA
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'8"

Weight: 340 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 36 ⅛"

Hand Size: 11 ¼"

40-Yard Dash: 5.07 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.78 seconds

Vertical Jump: 25.5"

Broad Jump: 9' 3"

STRENGTHS

- Very athletic for a player of his size – shows that he can pull and get out in space.
- Willing run blocker that drives defenders clear and creates rushing lanes.
- Flexible lower half and is able to transfer his weight efficiently from his post foot to his set foot.
- Hands are strong and allows him to steer and redirect defenders.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs more refinement due to limited experience – only 8 starts at Georgia.
- Bounces off defenders at the second level.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Mims enters the NFL with all of the tools to be developed into a top offensive tackle for an offense. He's got great length and athleticism for the position. Meanwhile, he's strong and able to steer defenders consistently due to his grip strength and power in the run game. There are times that his pad level and footwork become inconsistent when pass blocking but with more experience, that could get developed. Ultimately, Mims is best suited to play right tackle for an offense with the potential to develop into a starter.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 5-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Bleckley County High School in Cochran, Georgia. He had offers from every top school in the country such as Oklahoma, Clemson and others but he committed to Georgia. In addition to football, he also played basketball in high school. Entered the transfer portal after his freshman season but ended up staying at Georgia. Last season, he suffered an ankle injury in week 3 and he needed tightrope surgery on that ankle. He returned in week 11 against Ole Miss. Will be 22-years old in October.

DARIUS ROBINSON

EDGE | MISSOURI
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'5"

Weight: 285 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 34 ½"

Hand Size: 10 ⅝"

40-Yard Dash: 4.95 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.73 seconds

Vertical Jump: 35"

Broad Jump: 9' 3"

STRENGTHS

- Tremendous length for the position with a muscular frame.
- Will provide alignment versatility as he's found success in multiple spots.
- Able to turn speed-to-power off-the-edge.
- Plays physically between the tackles and is able to withstand contact consistently.
- More of a power rusher but plays with good pad level and has an effective long-arm.

WEAKNESSES

- Speed and change of direction could get tested at the next level.
- Needs to develop some type of counter move(s) to his pass-rush plan.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Robinson was a hidden gem in a 3-3-5 stack defense that really limited what he could do as a pass-rusher. That said, he's got the tools needed to become a consistent threat against the run and pass in the NFL. Playing with more power than speed, he's effective when bull-rushing but he's able to turn some speed-to-power and he's able to win with his length consistently. He lacks fluidity and quickness within his lower half and he'll need to develop a counter move in his pass-rush plan. As a day 2 pick, he should be a plug-and-play starter for a defense that values defensive ends that can align as a 4i and 5-technique in the NFL.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Canton High School in Canton, Michigan. He had offers from schools such as Michigan State, Colorado, Virginia Tech and others but ended up committing to Missouri. In addition to football, he also played basketball as a forward. Played in over 40 games for the Missouri Tigers. Has battled through some lower body injuries in his career such as calf and ankle injuries. Grew up a Detroit Lions fan. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

COOPER DEJEAN

CB | IOWA
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'0 ½"

Weight: 203 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 31 ⅛"

Hand Size: 9 ⅝"

40-Yard Dash: 4.44 seconds

Vertical Jump: 38 ½"

Broad Jump: 10' 4"

STRENGTHS

- Great athlete that can change direction laterally and run vertically.
- Has experience playing safety and cornerback.
- Moved around the Iowa defense and was used out of the slot to blitz.
- Provides special teams ability as a returner and gunner.
- Experienced in both man and zone coverage.

WEAKNESSES

- Pad level rises when he's trying to flip his hips.
- Looks stiff when opening his hips at times – pad level remains high when transitioning.

OVERALL PROJECTION

DeJean is a well-built defensive back that has the physicality and athleticism needed to play anywhere in the defensive backfield. He's experienced at both safety and cornerback but I could see a team try him on the perimeter before placing him over the top of the defense. With his special teams ability, he should carve out a role immediately on a special teams unit. Best suited to play in zone coverage while in cover 3 or quarters coverage, he can also play in man coverage. There's potential for DeJean to be a versatile chess piece with an NFL defense that trusts to move him around.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Battle Creek-Ida Grove High School in Ida Grove, Iowa. He had offers to schools such as North Dakota State, Illinois State and others but committed to Iowa once they showed interest. Also played basketball, baseball and ran track in high school. He was an All-Iowa selection in football, basketball and track and field in 2020. Was Iowa's Gatorade Player of the Year for the 2020 football season. Averaged 25.9 PPG, 7.8 RPG and 7.1 APG in basketball. Suffered a fractured fibula that required surgery in November of 2023.

MICHAEL PENIX JR

QB | WASHINGTON
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'2"

Weight: 216 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 33 ⅝"

Hand Size: 10 ½"

40-Yard Dash: 4.58 seconds

Vertical Jump: 36 ½"

STRENGTHS

- Ball jumps out of his hand with a simple flick of the wrist.
- Throws with great velocity – helps fit passes through tight coverage.
- Has the mobility needed to escape pressure, sacks and extend plays beyond the pocket.
- Experienced player with 43 career starts at Indiana and Washington.
- Ball placement isn't an issue when pushing the ball downfield.

WEAKNESSES

- Injury history is long and littered with longevity concerns.
- Needs to throw with more touch – a lot of fastballs thrown on tape.
- Majority of his throws are outside the numbers.
- Will be 24-years old as a rookie.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Despite being an older prospect for the position, Michael Penix Jr., is a smart and tough player with the desired arm strength to succeed in the NFL. Best suited for a spread offense, he's able to complete passes at all three levels of the field. He'll need to throw with more touch and become more efficient when reading the middle of the field. Teams will value his experience, his mobility and ability to fit passes into tight windows. While he can operate off-script, he has shown that he will struggle when faced with constant pressure (i.e. Michigan). Medical checks will be important for teams but there's potential for Penix to start in the NFL within the next year.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Tampa Bay Tech High School in Tampa, Florida. During his recruitment process, he had offers to schools such as Florida State, Oregon and others but he ended up committing to Tennessee. Months later, he ended up flipping his commitment to Indiana. In addition to playing football in high school, he also played basketball, baseball and ran track. In basketball, he averaged 10.7 PPG and 11.7 RPG as a Junior. His PR in the 200-meter dash was 22.89 seconds. After 20 games played in four seasons (12-5 record) with the Hoosiers, he transferred to Washington. During his two seasons with the Huskies, he went 25-3 with over 9,500 passing yards. Won Maxwell Award in 2023. Competed in the 2024 Senior Bowl.

CHOP ROBINSON

EDGE | PENN STATE
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'3"

Weight: 254 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 32 ½"

Hand Size: 9 ⅛"

40-Yard Dash: 4.48 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.54 seconds

Vertical Jump: 34.5"

Broad Jump: 10' 8"

STRENGTHS

- Violent disruptor that gets upfield in a hurry due to his explosive first step.
- Effective rip move that looks to hit consistently.
- Has been able to drop into coverage as a hook-curl defender.
- Displays a good motor against the run.
- Shows the desired flexibility needed to lower pad level and change direction.
- Versatile with the ability to align anywhere along the defensive line.

WEAKNESSES

- Turns his shoulders against the run too often – Rarely fights pressure against pressure against the run – will get washed easily.
- Struggles to get home on his pass-rush.
- Needs to add some type of counter move(s) to his pass-rush.

OVERALL PROJECTION

There might not be a more intriguing prospect in this year's draft than Robinson. He has the tools and athleticism needed to be an effective player for a defense. Much of that will be determined on if he can get home against the pass more consistently and if he can get stronger against the run. He's shown the ability to drop into coverage as a hook-curl defender but teams that draft him should intend on using him predominantly as a pass-rusher. His alignment versatility will be an asset for an NFL defense as he's able to align from a zero to a wide-9 technique. Robinson is a player that needs polishing but he appears best suited to play as stand-up edge rusher in the NFL.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 5-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Quince Orchard High School in Gaithersburg, Maryland. Originally committed to Maryland and played in 13 games with one start. Transferred to Penn State and played in 22 games for the Nittany Lions. Full name is Demeioun Robinson and has seven siblings.

ZACH FRAZIER

IOL | WEST VIRGINIA
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'3"

Weight: 313 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 32 ¼"

Hand Size: 10 ⅞"

Bench Press: 30 reps

STRENGTHS

- Plays with plenty of power and it helps him drive defenders into the ground.
- Keeps head on a swivel and eyes up with handling line stunts and blitzes.
- Shows good consistency with anchoring and is able to roll his hips.
- Grip strength allows him to steer and drive defenders.
- Plays square to defenders in pass protection and plays with low pad level.

WEAKNESSES

- Lower body can become lethargic as games go on – hurts his game laterally.
- Hand speed could be faster off the snap.
- Arm length could present challenges against defenders with longer arms.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Transitioning to the NFL, it's easy to see why Frazier could get labeled as a plug-and-play offensive lineman. He's got a thick lower half that helps him remain stout against the run and anchor consistently at the point-of-attack. Playing square and technically sound on a consistent basis, he looks to roll his hips and move defenders every chance he gets. In the run game, he finishes blocks and is able to drive defenders into the ground. The way he plays with leverage and battles on the interior is credited to his wrestling background. Best suited for a gap scheme, teams could still use him to reach blocks in a zone scheme due to his overall athletic ability.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Fairmont High School in Fairmont, WV. He had offers to schools such as Stanford, Louisville and others but he committed to West Virginia. His father, Ray, played college football at Fairmont State. In addition to football, he was a standout wrestler that finished his career with a record of 159-2 and he won four state championships. He also competed in track and field as a thrower in discus and shot put. His PR in the shot put was 42' 1.5" and 134' 4" for the discus. Finished his college career with 47 games played for the Mountaineers with 37 straight starts at center. Started 9 games in 2020 at left guard.

CHRIS BRASWELL

EDGE | ALABAMA
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'3"

Weight: 251 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 33 ¼"

Hand Size: 9 ⅜"

40-Yard Dash: 4.60 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.59 seconds

Vertical Jump: 33.5"

Broad Jump: 9' 7"

STRENGTHS

- Loves to use speed-to-power when rushing the passer or disrupting the run.
- Counters with quick hands and moves such as double-swipe, club-swim and arm-overs.
- Plays with consistent effort and pursuit to the football.
- Displays good jump off-the-snap to attack upfield quickly.

WEAKNESSES

- Can play too high and will expose his chest too frequently in his rush.
- Needs to get stronger – can get knocked off his path or washed against the run.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Braswell projects to the NFL as a stand-up pass rusher but he's got the size and overall frame to play from a 2-point and 3-point stance. He's able to win with speed off-the-edge consistently but there's a lot of power in his game. His physical style of play will win over evaluators and his ability to counter in his pass-rush on a consistent basis could make him an immediate contributor for an NFL defense. Against the run, he'll need to get stronger or attack half-man rather than getting chest-to-chest with the opposition but NFL teams will figure out what to do with him situationally. He could be a situational player early in his career but there's tools for him to develop into more as a stand-up defender.
PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from St. Frances Academy in Baltimore, Maryland. Despite having offers from schools such as Texas A&M, Oklahoma, LSU and others, he committed to Alabama. Played in 40 games for the Crimson Tide with 16 tackles for loss and 11 sacks in his career. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

Hand Size: 8 ¾"

40-Yard Dash: 4.41 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.61 seconds

Vertical Jump: 39"

Broad: Jump: 10' 4"

STRENGTHS

- Has the ability to threaten defenses vertically on a consistent basis.
- Displays good run after-the-catch ability.
- Good length to high-point the football.
- Sudden releases due to great footwork and hand usage.
- Good lateral quickness to tie up defenders.

WEAKNESSES

- Struggles with more physical defenders at the catch point.
- Separation concerns could occur vertically against physical defenders.
- Skinnier frame could lead to issues on contact and with blocking.
- Drops were an issue at times on tape.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Franklin enters the NFL as an efficient route runner that can threaten defenses vertically. Much of that is due to his speed and ability to adjust to the football while it's in the air. With good lateral quickness to get in-and-out of his breaks, he will eat up targets in the short and intermediate areas of the field. His length gives him advantages on 50/50 balls and he can adjust to the football on back shoulder throws. The question will be if he can adjust consistently on the football when faced with more physical defenders that he'll face in the NFL. As he begins his career, he should easily find a role as a deep target for an offense with the potential to be a productive number two receiver.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Menlo-Atherton High School in Menlo Park, California. He had offers to schools such as Ole Miss, Florida, Oklahoma and others but he ended up committing to Oregon. In addition to football, he also competed in track and field in high school. Saw an increase in production all three seasons at Oregon. His 14 touchdown receptions in 2023 led the Pac-12 and was tied for 3rd most in the NCAA.

ENNIS RAKESTRAW JR

CB | MISSOURI
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND
PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5' 11"

Weight: 183 pounds

Class: Junior (RS)

Arm Length: 32"

Hand Size: 8 ½"

40-Yard Dash: 4.51 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.54 seconds

Broad Jump: 10' 0"

STRENGTHS

- Has good length for the position and uses long arms to jam and redirect receivers.
- Good production during his four-year career.
- Willing run defender on the perimeter – comes up aggressively with good tackling form.
- Smooth lateral transitions with fluid hips.
- Physical and competitive at the catch point.

WEAKNESSES

- Good physicality but hands tend to grab too much cloth downfield.
- Injuries are concerning for career longevity.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Rakestraw is a highly competitive cornerback that is tough and physical. His length helps him jam and redirect defenders while battling at the catch point. Productive in both man and zone coverage, he appears best suited as a press-man corner in the NFL. His aggressiveness in the run game is a plus on the perimeter but his physicality can become troublesome downfield in coverage. If Rakestraw can stay healthy, he can be a number two cornerback in a defense looking for another man defender.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Duncanville High School in Duncanville, Texas. He had offers from a plethora of top schools such as Alabama, Georgia, Ole Miss and others but he committed to Missouri. In addition to football, he also competed in track and field. His PR for the 100-meter dash was 11.06 seconds. Started 32 games at Missouri. Suffered torn ACL in 2021 and a groin injury in 2023. Will be 23-years old. Play style reminds me of Emmanuel Moseley.

CHRISTIAN HAYNES

IOL | UCONN
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE-DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'3"

Weight: 317 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 33 ½"

Hand Size: 9"

40-Yard Dash: 5.03 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.75 seconds

Vertical Jump: 33"

Broad Jump: 8' 6"

STRENGTHS

- Physical player that fires out of his stance to demolish the opposition.
- Shows no limitations with pulling and getting out in space.
- Consistent when climbing to linebackers to seal-off defenders and create rushing lanes at the second level.
- One of the best finishers in the draft at the position.
- Handles line stunts consistently and stays square in pass protection.

WEAKNESSES

- Hands strike wide and outside hand can be seen grabbing shoulder pads or the back of defenders.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Consistent growth with a player is always encouraging. With Haynes, he's shown that and more as a player during his career with the Huskies. He's started 49 straight games on the interior and has developed into one of the best finishers for interior offensive lineman in the draft. Always trying to assert his dominance and physicality, he's found ways to do that and win in a variety of ways. Whether it be off a combo block, pulling or reach blocking, he's got the desired play strength and lateral quickness needed to excel in the NFL.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 2-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) out of Bowie High School in Bowie, Maryland. Despite having offers to schools such as Air Force, Virginia and others, he committed to Connecticut. In addition to football, he lettered in wrestling for one season. At UConn, he made 49 straight starts at guard. His brother, Marcus, was a UDFA to the Denver Broncos after the 2023 NFL Draft. Competed in the 2024 Senior Bowl. Play style reminds me of Nate Davis.

T'VONDRE SWEAT

IDL | TEXAS
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'4 ½"

Weight: 366 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 33 ¼"

Hand Size: 10 ⅛"

40-Yard Dash: 5.27 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.8 seconds

Vertical Jump: 26"

Broad Jump: 8' 2"

STRENGTHS

- Massive frame for the position that pulls multiple blockers in his direction.
- Experienced player with over 60 games played in his career.
- Has great strength and power for the position.
- Takes on blocks with ease and frees up other defenders to attack freely.
- Has better lateral quickness than given credit for.
- Uses a combination of moves from his bullrush, swim move and club-rip move.

WEAKNESSES

- Regardless of his size and power, his pad level needs improvement.
- First step is average and allows the offensive lineman to cut off his path quicker.

OVERALL PROJECTION

There may not be an easier evaluation in the draft process than T'Vondre Sweat. It's very simple with him. What you see is what you're going to get. There's been improvements over his career from lateral quickness to hand usage but he's played over 60 games and is an absolute force up front. There's potential for him to be a three-down player but more than likely, he'll be in a similar rotation for an NFL team like we saw with him at Texas. His power and strength separates him from most players in the class and he's going to have multiple blockers headed his way on every single play. Teams will value Sweat for eating up space and drawing attention so other defenders can play freely.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Huntsville High School in Huntsville, Texas. He had offers from a plethora of schools such as Oklahoma, Alabama and others but he committed to Texas. In addition to football, he also played basketball. In 7 games his senior season, he averaged 14.3 PPG, 8.9 RPG and 2.4 BPG. Winner of the 2023 Outland Trophy and was a unanimous All-American in 2023. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

PAYTON WILSON

ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'4"

Weight: 233 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 30 ½"

Hand Size: 9"

40-Yard Dash: 4.43 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.54 seconds

Vertical Jump: 34.5"

Broad Jump: 9' 11"

STRENGTHS

- High motor and high effort on every single play.
- Effective pass-rusher and he appears at his best when he gets to pin his ears back and get the QB.
- Shows good range and has the desired speed to play sideline-to-sideline.
- Has the speed to cover tight ends and running backs out of the backfield.

WEAKNESSES

- Lack of arm length can be problematic for taking on and shedding blocks.
- Injury history is a major concern – knee and shoulder surgeries are concerning for career longevity.

OVERALL PROJECTION

The long list of injuries for Wilson are troubling but his tape is about as impressive as any linebacker prospect in the draft. He's at his best when he's able to rush the passer but he's got the desired speed and range needed to play linebacker in the NFL. His motor is relentless and it could help find him a role early in his career for a defense or special teams unit. Best suited to play in man coverage due to his speed, he can drop into zone coverage but there's more hesitation within his game when doing so. Overall, there's starting ability for Wilson but the biggest hurdle for his career will be his health.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Orange High School in Hillsborough, North Carolina. He had offers from Florida State, Notre Dame and was committed to North Carolina before flipping to N.C. State. In addition to football, he played lacrosse and was on the wrestling team. Finished 43-0 in 2017 with a state championship win. He wrestled since the age of 4. In 2019, he was arrested for multiple class one misdemeanors (fake ID, impeding traffic and consuming alcohol by a 19 or 20-year old). Has suffered two torn ACL's in his football career. His brother, Bryse, pitches in the MLB for the Milwaukee Brewers. Won the Chuck Bednarik Award and Butkus Award in 2023. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

TYLER NUBIN

SAF | MINNESOTA
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'1"

Weight: 199 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 32"

Hand Size: 9"

STRENGTHS

- Experienced defender with over 40 career starts.
- Has the desired athletic ability and range to play in a two-high or single-high safety defense.
- Good size and frame to withstand contact from bigger playmakers.
- Shows that he can be a good tackler in the open field.
- Flashes good range and tracks the ball well when it's in the air.

WEAKNESSES

- Lower half isn't as fluid and can get stuck in the ground when changing direction.
- Will slip off tackles due to bad form or bad angles to the football.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Since becoming a full-time starter in 2021, Nubin has ensured that his presence is felt on the field. He's a physical defender that has the desired frame to withstand contact consistently at the next level. There's a good chance that he'll earn a special teams role in year one but teams should feel confident that he could start early in his career as well. His athleticism, range and ball skills will be valued on an NFL defense that runs a good blend of zone and man coverage.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from St. Charles North High School in St. Charles, Illinois. He had offers from schools such as Northwestern, Michigan State and others but he committed to Minnesota. In addition to football, he also played basketball in high school. Played in 55 games for the Golden Gophers. His father, Rodney, played football at Eastern Michigan. His brother, Jordan, currently plays running back at Minnesota. His mother, Sharese, ran track at Eastern Michigan.

RICKY PEARSALL

ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'1"

Weight: 189 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 30 ⅞"

Hand Size: 9 ¼"

40-Yard Dash: 4.41 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.57 seconds

Vertical Jump: 42"

3-Cone Drill: 6.64 seconds

STRENGTHS

- Crafty route runner with good first step quickness and ability to explode off his jab steps.
- Great change-of-direction ability when running his routes and with the ball in his hands.
- Good speed and burst to win at all three levels of the field – especially after-the-catch.
- Has the experience and production to be trusted from inside and outside alignments.
- Makes terrific adjustments on the football and is able to consistently make acrobatic catches for big gains.
- Plays under control and catches the ball away from his body consistently.

WEAKNESSES

- Struggles with contact on contested catches.
- Will need to get stronger for when he's blocking and facing press-man corners.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Always finding a way to get open, Pearsall is a must-watch for teams looking to upgrade their wide receiver room. He may not be the size of a prototypical 'X' receiver but he's got the fluidity and route running prowess to win anywhere on the field. The way he adjusts on the football and hauls in difficult passes on a weekly basis is impressive but it'll be interesting if those catches become limited due to the physicality in the NFL. Keep in mind that he was more successful at getting open against zone coverage rather than facing man coverage . Regardless, Pearsall enters the league with WR2/WR3 potential for any team that drafts him. He provides special teams ability as a returner and could carve out a productive role from the slot for an offense.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Corona Del Sol High School in Chandler, Arizona. With offers from schools such as Hawaii, Idaho and a few others on the table, he committed to Arizona State. Played for the Sun Devils from 2019 to 2021 before entering the transfer portal. In the portal, he ended up transferring to Florida. In addition to football, he also ran track in high school and his PR for the 100-meter dash was 11.02 seconds. Became a 25-game starter for the Gators. Competed in the 2024 Senior Bowl.

COOPER BEEBE

IOL | KANSAS STATE
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

Hand Size: 9 ¼"

40-Yard Dash: 5.03 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.75 seconds

Vertical Jump: 27.5"

Broad Jump: 9' 1"

STRENGTHS

- An experienced player as he had 48 career starts at Kansas State.
- Willing run blocker who looks to finish his blocks.
- Strong and fluid lower half to redirect himself towards line stunts and blitzes.
- Shows that he can anchor against power rushers.
- Excels on combo blocks and shows enough quickness to seal off second level defenders.

WEAKNESSES

- Lack of length will be a concern against longer defenders.
- Needs to improve explosiveness and quickness out of his stance.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Better suited to be a day two pick, there's a chance that Beebe sneaks into the first day of the 2024 NFL Draft. He's a strong and willing blocker that looks to finish blocks consistently in the run game. His lack of length is concerning against pass rushers that are able to drive him back with their length and power. However, he shows enough consistency to anchor that the pocket shouldn't immediately collapse on the quarterback in the passing game. Overall, Beebe has experience playing in a variety of spots along the offensive line and he seems best suited to play guard for a team. Look for him to be a top-50 pick with the potential to start right out of the gate.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Piper High School in Kansas City, Kansas. He had offers from schools such as Kansas, Minnesota and others but committed to Kansas State. In addition to football, he also played basketball and was on the track and field team in high school. He was selected to play for Team USA U17 in the 2017 International Bowl against Team Japan as well as for Team USA U19 in the 2018 World Championships. His father, Tom, played football at Pittsburg State. His brother, Colton, played tight end at Minnesota and his brother, Camden is an offensive lineman at Kansas State. Graduated from Kansas State with a degree in social studies education. Accepted invite to the 2024 Senior Bowl but didn't compete at the event.

BRADEN FISKE

IDL | FLORIDA STATE
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'4"

Weight: 292 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 31"

Hand Size: 9 ⅜"

40-Yard Dash: 4.78 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.68 seconds

Vertical Jump: 33.5"

Broad Jump: 9' 9"

STRENGTHS

- Explosive first step – times the snap perfectly almost every time.
- Motor is 100mph on every play.
- Can win with speed, swipe-rip move, push-pull or a swim move.
- Hands hit hard and fast into the opposition's chest.
- Play speed and lateral quickness help generate pressure and make him a productive pass-rusher.

WEAKNESSES

- Shorter arms are concerning to create separation on a consistent basis.
- Lower body strength will get tested against stronger lineman.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Fiske is one of the most explosive interior defenders in this year's class. While he lacks arm length to create separation, he makes up for it with his first step quickness and high motor. He's the type of player that can stick in the NFL due to that motor and his pass-rush ability. He'll need to get stronger but being relentless with his repertoire of moves can lead to a bunch of success. Best suited to play as a 3-technique, he could find himself aligned as a 4i or 5-technique in some defensive packages such as a 5-1 Bear front. There's a chance that he sneaks into the first round but he seems likely to be an early day two pick and he should be a spark-plug for a defense.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Michigan City High School in Michigan City, Indiana. He was lightly recruited with offers from smaller schools such as Illinois State but he ended up committing to Western Michigan once they offered him. In addition to football, he was also a successful baseball player in high school. He was a pitcher that could throw a 75 MPH fastball while also being able to throw a slider and curveball. He made the varsity baseball team as a freshman. After 45 games played with 30 starts with the Broncos, he transferred to Florida State and started 13 games for the Seminoles. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

XAVIER LEGETTE

WR | SOUTH CAROLINA
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE-DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'1"

Weight: 221 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 31 ⅞"

Hand Size: 9"

40-Yard Dash: 4.39 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.54 seconds

Vertical Jump: 40"

Broad Jump: 10' 6"

STRENGTHS

- Well built receiver that looks like a running back with the football in his hands.
- Provides plenty of run after-the-catch ability in the short areas of the field.
- Able to win consistently on designed screens and deep down the field.
- Has good build-up speed to threaten vertically.
- Shows that he can come down with the football in contested catch situations.

WEAKNESSES

- Not as fluid laterally as others – limits his ability to change direction.
- Doesn't create separation on a consistent basis – more physical defenders could get the best of him during contested catch situations.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Built like an 'X' receiver, Legette is versatile enough to move and align anywhere in a formation. With each step that he takes in his routes, his speed begins to pick up and it allows him to threaten defenses vertically down the field on a consistent basis. With his lower half built like a running back, he's able to absorb contact and bounce off tacklers while gaining additional yardage after the catch. Best suited for jump balls, he can win in contested catch situations but the lack of separation on those contested catches is somewhat concerning. Shorter arms and lack of fluidity could also create issues against faster and stronger defenders but he looks capable of developing into a strong number two receiver for an NFL offense.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Mullins High School in Mullins, South Carolina. He had offers to schools such as Tennessee, Colorado State and others but ended up staying in his home state and committed to South Carolina. In addition to football, he played baseball and basketball. Through 49 games of baseball in high school career, his batting average was .311 with 4 home runs, 19 RBIs and 39 stolen bases. Played in 53 games with 32 starts at South Carolina. Will be 23-years old as a rookie. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl. Athletic profile is comparable to Donte Moncrief.

JORDAN MORGAN

IOL | ARIZONA
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND
PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'5"

Weight: 311 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 32 ⅞"

Hand Size: 10 ⅞"

40-Yard Dash: 5.04 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.70 seconds

Vertical Jump: 28"

Broad Jump: 9' 2"

STRENGTHS

- Has the desired length and overall size to play tackle in the NFL.
- Strong hands allows him to steer and drive defenders consistently.
- Latches onto defenders and is able to control them with ease.
- Good athleticism to get out in space.
- Can climb and seal off defenders at the second level.

WEAKNESSES

- Opens hips and allows edge rushers to turn the corner consistently.
- Bends at the waist and it slows him down when dealing with speed rushers and line stunts.
- Injuries piled up throughout parts of his career with an ankle injury and torn ACL.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Morgan projects to the NFL as a guard/tackle prospect that is adequate when run and pass blocking. He's a good enough athlete to pull and climb to the second level but he doesn't always finish his blocks and will bounce off defenders when making contact. In pass protection, he does open his hips and it makes it easier for speed-rushers to get around him. His size and overall length is feasible at tackle but his play speed and play strength may be better suited to play guard. There's plug-and-play potential with Morgan but staying healthy will be key for him moving forward.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Marana High School in Marana, Arizona. He had offers from Arizona State, USC and others but committed to Arizona. In addition to football, he competed in track and field as a thrower. His PR for the shot put was 50'9" and 139'4" in the discus. Dealt with several different injuries at Arizona with a torn ACL and high ankle sprain. Started 37 games at left tackle for the Wildcats. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

KINGSLEY SUAMATAIA

OT | BYU
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'5"

Weight: 326 lbs

Class: Sophomore (RS)

Arm Length: 34 ¼"

Hand Size: 10 ⅝"

40-Yard Dash: 5.04 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.74 seconds

Vertical Jump: 28"

Broad Jump: 9' 2"

STRENGTHS

- Good athlete with quick feet and is able to get out in space to lead block or wall off defenders.
- Great frame and length for the position – uses long arms to lock out pass rushers.
- Effective when using snatch-trap technique in pass protection.
- Comfortable on combo blocks and climbing to seal off second level defenders.

WEAKNESSES

- Plays tall with his pad level and will have too much of a forward lean at times.
- Hand placement could use some refinement – both hands will hit too wide.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Suamataia enters the NFL with the prototypical frame and length to play either left or right tackle. He's comfortable in a zone scheme and he's able to use his athletic ability to get out in space and execute reach blocks consistently or seal off defenders at the second level. In pass protection, he's great at using a snatch-trap technique to level defenders into the ground. In addition to that, he's got quick feet to mirror defenders coming off the edge. He'll need to work on his hand placement in the NFL but he's got the tools to become a starting tackle for a team.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 5-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Orem High School in Orem, Utah. He had offers from schools such as Penn State, Texas A&M and others but committed to Oregon. Played one game for the Ducks in 2021 before being redshirted. Then he transferred to BYU where he recorded 22 starts (10 at left tackle and 12 at right tackle). Was high school teammates with Puka Nacua. Won four straight state championships in high school. Cousins with Detroit Lions' Penei Sewell and Chicago Bears' Noah Sewell. Fluent in Samoan. Turned 21-years old in January. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND
PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5'10 ¾"

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 30 ⅜"

Hand Size: 9 ⅜"

40-Yard Dash: 4.39 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.52 seconds

Bench Press: 12 reps

STRENGTHS

- Fluid route runner that can beat defenders with head and shoulder fakes consistently.
- Explodes off his jab step and is able to change direction easily.
- Has the speed to threaten defenses vertically.
- Shows that he can win the short areas of the field with fluidity and good run after-the-catch ability.
- Can thrive in the middle of the field on dig routes and crossing patterns.

WEAKNESSES

- Pacing of his routes could improve for even more success.
- Can struggle against more physical defenders when pressed at the line-of-scrimmage.
- Play strength could get tested when blocking and on contested catches.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Part of a run-first offense puts some limitations on what Wilson can really do or become as a receiver. Seeing him compete at the Senior Bowl should change the minds of NFL decision makers. Wilson is a dynamic route runner that creates separation with ease. Much of his success is due to the pacing of his routes and ability to sink his hips to successfully break in-and-out of his routes. Size limitations could limit him to a slot-only role in the NFL but his speed, fluidity and route running ability should help him find success early in his career for an offense that spreads it out in the passing game.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from St. Louis High School in Honolulu, Hawaii. Despite having offers to schools such as Oregon, UCLA and others, he committed to Michigan. In addition to football, he also was on the track and field team. His PR for the 100-meter dash was 10.86 seconds. His morning commute to high school in Hawaii consisted of getting up at 3:30am to take an airplane to St. Louis High School. Has been labeled as the epitome of hard work from coaches and teammates. Has 24 career starts in his career. Will be 23-years old in June. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 31"

Hand Size: 8 ⅝"

40-Yard Dash: 4.44 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.53 seconds

Vertical Jump: 33.5"

STRENGTHS

- Plays under control and is within striking distance of most receivers he covers.
- Good tackler and is able to come up and hit ball carriers.
- Fluid athlete with quick feet and good lateral movement skills.
- Competes at the catch point and closes quickly on the football.
- Productive with good ball skills – has 40 career pass breakups and 7 interceptions.
- Provides special teams ability as a gunner and returner.

WEAKNESSES

- Thinner frame could present some limitations at the next level.
- Opens his hips too early and is more prone to having to recover and close.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Abrams-Draine is a productive cornerback that is versatile enough to play inside or outside for a defense. His aggressiveness pops on tape with his ability to come up and tackle the opposition. Playing with good fluidity and click-close ability, he's always around the football and this has led to good college production. Best suited in man coverage or playing with outside third responsibilities in a cover 3, he should be able to slide into a contributing role early in his career with potential to be a mainstay as a number two cornerback.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Spanish Fort High School in Spanish Fort, Alabama. Had offers to schools such as LSU, Florida State and others but he committed to Missouri after flipping from LSU. In addition to football, he also played basketball and was on the track and field team in high school. Played quarterback in high school but initially signed with Missouri as a wide receiver. Flipped to defensive back in 2021. Play style reminds me of Cameron Sutton. Will be 23-years old in October. Competed in the 2024 Senior Bowl.

BLAKE CORUM

ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5'8"

Weight: 205 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 28 ⅞"

Hand Size: 9"

40-Yard Dash: 4.53 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.58 seconds

Vertical Jump: 35 ½"

3-Cone Drill: 6.82 seconds

STRENGTHS

- Downhill runner that is always able to fall forward for yardage.
- Runs with great contact balance – consistently run through initial contact.
- Lateral movement is impressive for such a strong, downhill runner.
- Runs with great vision and change of direction ability.
- Isn't afraid of contact when running the ball or picking up blitzes.
- Shows no issues when catching passes out of the backfield.

WEAKNESSES

- Long speed will get tested in the NFL – won't always be a home run threat.
- Limited explosiveness out in space.
- Heavy college usage could cause concern for teams in the NFL.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Transitioning to the NFL, Blake Corum is one of the more experienced and productive backs in the class. He's an effective downhill runner that consistently runs through contact on a consistent basis. Even though his speed will get tested against NFL defenses, his lateral movement skills are superb. He runs with good patience and pace and his vision helps him change direction with ease. Despite not being all that explosive, there's potential for Corum to be a three-down back in the NFL. He seems likely to split backfield duties in the NFL but it wouldn't be surprising if he's highly productive in an NFL offense that is more run-centric.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from St. Frances Academy in Laurel, Maryland. Despite having offers from LSU, Virginia Tech and others, he committed to Michigan. Was the 2019 Gatorade Player of the Year in Maryland. In addition to football, he also ran track. His PR in the 100-meter dash was 11.35 seconds. Finished 7th on the all-time rushing list at Michigan (3,737 yards). Program record holder in rushing touchdowns (58), total touchdowns (61) and career points scored (356). Voted team captain by teammates in 2023. Played in 45 career games with 28 career starts. His play style reminds me of David Montgomery.

QB | OREGON
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND
PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'2"

Weight: 214 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 31 ⅞"

Hand Size: 10 ⅛"

STRENGTHS

- Has the athletic ability needed to extend plays and make unorthodox throws on the run.
- Shows good consistency with driving throws with the needed velocity to fit those passes.
- Adequate size and arm strength for the position.
- Appears comfortable throwing off play-action and sprint rollouts.
- Experienced college quarterback with 61 career starts.

WEAKNESSES

- Can get antsy when faced with pressure – throws to MOF are off-balanced and inaccurate.
- High percentage of throws and completions come from behind the line-of-scrimmage.
- Becomes indecisive off his first read and hesitates on deeper routes downfield.

OVERALL PROJECTION

One of the most experienced passers in this year's draft, Nix could potentially play right away, if asked. However, he seems likely for a backup role as he starts his career. Much of that is because he still needs some refinement with his footwork and he has to maintain a controlled base when throwing towards the middle of the field. Displaying the arm strength and athletic ability for today's NFL, there will be plenty of teams interested in the upside that comes with drafting Nix. Best suited for an RPO-style offense, Nix could find success in a system that lets him get rid of the football quickly and allows him to use his athletic ability to his advantage.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Pinson Valley High School in Pinson, Alabama. Despite having offers to all of the top schools in the country such as Notre Dame, Alabama and others, Nix committed to Auburn. His father, Patrick, was a former Auburn QB and college and high school football coach. In addition to football, Bo competed in basketball and baseball in high school. Won Mr. Football in the State of Alabama. After 34 starts at Auburn, he transferred to Oregon and started 27 games for the Ducks. Competed in the 2024 Senior Bowl.

KRIS JENKINS

IDL | MICHIGAN
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND
PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'3"

Weight: 299 lbs

Class: Junior (RS)

Arm Length: 34"

Hand Size: 9 ⅜"

40-Yard Dash: 4.91 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.70 seconds

Vertical Jump: 30"

Broad Jump: 9' 7"

STRENGTHS

- Displays quick hands and quick feet when moving laterally.
- Closes quickly to quarterbacks and running backs.
- Plays with good pad level and shows that he can split double teams.
- Has a good motor to be a bend-and-chase player in the NFL.

WEAKNESSES

- Lower body strength will get tested on combo blocks and against stronger interior lineman.
- There are balance concerns when getting reached.
- Rush will get stagnant at the line-of-scrimmage.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Following in his fathers footsteps to the NFL, Jenkins Jr., plays with good quickness in his hands and lower body to beat guards and centers regularly. He'll need to get stronger to improve some balance concerns to better handle reach blocks but his pad level helps him get skinny and split double teams. The established move in his repertoire is a swim move but his success as a pass-rusher has been limited so he could be limited to playing only two-downs as his career starts. Best suited to play from a zero to a 3-technique, Jenkins Jr., has the tools and athletic ability to eventually become a starter in the NFL.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Our Lady Good Counsel High School in Olney, Maryland. He had offers to schools such as Penn State, North Carolina and others but committed to Michigan. Played in 44 games with 32 starts at Michigan. Voted a captain by his teammates in 2023. His father, Kris, played 10 years in the NFL for the Carolina Panthers and New York Jets.

MARSHAWN LLOYD

RB | USC
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5'9"

Weight: 220 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 30 ⅜"

Hand Size: 8 ¾"

40-Yard Dash: 4.46 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.56 seconds

Vertical Jump: 36"

Broad: Jump: 9'10"

STRENGTHS

- Explosive runner that provides a splash when running to the perimeter.
- Excels as a blocker when picking up blitzes and line stunts.
- Shows that he can catch passes out of the backfield.
- Athletic enough to be aligned in a variety of spots.
- Effective lateral movements – shakes defenders with plenty of twitch and burst.
- Not afraid of contact – willing to stiff-arm and/or lower his shoulder into defenders.

WEAKNESSES

- Ability to create gets him in trouble – will bounce runs rather than take the yardage in front of him.
- Dealt with lower body injuries during his career from torn ACL to quad injuries.
- Fumbles are a concern on 291 carries in his college career.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Despite limited touches (325 total touches) in college, Lloyd enters the draft this year as one of its most dynamic playmakers. He's explosive in the open field and has plenty of burst to bounce runs to the perimeter. Moving onto the NFL, he'll need to be careful with how frequently he looks to bounce those runs as he'll get into trouble against the speed in the NFL. However, Lloyd is one of the most effective lateral movers at the position. He's got the ability to slice defenders with his explosive jump cuts and he shows very little hesitation when approached with contact. There's potential for him to become a 3-down back in the NFL but for now, he should split backfield duties.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from DeMatha Catholic High School in Hyattsville, Maryland. While he had offers to some of the top schools in the country such as Notre Dame, Alabama and others, he committed to South Carolina. In addition to high school football, he also competed in track and field for his high school. His PR for the 100-meter dash was 11.54 seconds. Suffered a torn ACL in his left knee during fall camp of the 2020 season with South Carolina. After 21 games played for South Carolina, he transferred to USC. Does a bunch of community service work off the football field. Competed in the 2024 Senior Bowl.

SAF 2 | 58TH

JADEN HICKS

SAF | WASHINGTON STATE
ROUND GRADE | 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'2"

Weight: 211 lbs

Class: Sophomore (RS)

Arm Length: 31 ½"

Hand Size: 9 ⅜"

3-Cone Drill: 6.88 seconds

20-Yard Shuttle: 4.37 seconds

Vertical Jump: 37.5"

Broad Jump: 10' 2"

STRENGTHS

- Terrific tackler over the middle of the field and will hit the opposition hard.
- Takes correct angles to the football and is able to clean up missed tackles.
- Has the desired length to break-up passes at the catch point.
- Size, strength and speed to match tight ends in coverage.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs to lower pad level when pursuing the football.
- In single-high, he can get caught in the middle of the field staring at the quarterback

OVERALL PROJECTION

Hicks enters the 2024 NFL Draft as one of its more underrated defenders. He's got good size for the position and could be better suited to play closer to the box than playing as a single-high safety in a Cover-1 or Cover-3 defense. His athleticism and tackling ability in the alley is a huge plus and he should match up well against tight ends in man coverage. He'll need to process faster when playing zone coverage but the tools are there for him to become better than what we saw over the last two seasons with the Huskies. With those tools, there's a chance for him to become a starter at some point in year one. However, he could be better off splitting a dual safety role for a defense that emphasizes him more as a buzz defender or as a nickel covering the slot in a 'big nickel' package.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Bishop Gorman High School in Las Vegas, Nevada. He had offers from Boise State, Colorado State and others but committed to Washington State. In addition to football, he was also on the track and field team. His PR for the 100-meter dash was 11.26 seconds. His older brother, Kalen, played defensive back at Hawaii. Started 23 straight games for the Cougars. Will be 22-years old in August.

JA'LYNN POLK

WR | WASHINGTON
ROUND GRADE | LATE 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'1 ⅜"

Weight: 203 lbs

Class: Junior (RS)

Arm Length: 31 ¾"

Hand Size: 9 ¾"

40-Yard Dash: 4.52 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.52 seconds

Vertical Jump: 37 ½"

Broad: Jump: 10' 9"

STRENGTHS

- Will provide positional versatility due experience playing inside and outside.
- Used in-motion to force rotations in the secondary.
- Has the ability to track the football on deeper throws.
- Strong lower half helps with running through contact.
- Able to catch the football through contact – will provide some run after-the-catch ability for an offense.
- High-points and makes proper adjustments on 50/50 balls.

WEAKNESSES

- Had some concerning drops against Stanford.
- Takes longer to throttle down and change direction due lack of fluidity and poor route pacing.
- Lacks threatening explosiveness or burst after-the-catch.
- Doesn't create a ton of separation unless he uses his hands to push-off.

OVERALL PROJECTION

With three wide receivers entering the NFL from the Washington Huskies, the expectations vary for each player. For my money, Polk enters as one of the more underrated players at the position. He's got a well-built frame that withstands contact on a consistent basis. In jump ball situations, Polk can go up and get the football but he's also got the desired tracking ability to win deep down the field. Alignment versatility should help him get on the field early in his career but he'll need to become more fluid in his routes to get targeted consistently in the short and intermediate areas of the field.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Lufkin High School in Lufkin, Texas. He had offers to schools such as Baylor, Kansas State and others but he ended up committing to Texas Tech. After one season with the Red Raiders, he transferred to Washington. In addition to football, he also played high school basketball and also ran track. His PR for the 200-meter dash was 22.89 seconds. Dislocated his clavicle in 2021 on the first offensive play of the season.

MAX MELTON

CB | RUTGERS
ROUND GRADE | LATE 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5'11"

Weight: 187 lbs

Class: Junior (RS)

Arm Length: 32 ⅛"

Hand Size: 9 ⅛"

40-Yard Dash: 4.39 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.51 seconds

Vertical Jump: 40.5"

Broad Jump: 11' 4"

STRENGTHS

- Physical corner that excels in press-man and uses length to redirect receivers.
- Plays patient and remains square and under control while receivers release upfield.
- Has inside-outside versatility for a defense.
- Appears comfortable and knowledgeable in zone coverage.
- Closes quickly on receivers and is a good wrap-up tackler.

WEAKNESSES

- Doesn't always turn head around on the football – the receiver takes him to the ball.
- Gives up too much of a cushion on in-breaking routes.
- Plays with hesitation when flipping hips on vertical routes – awaits for WR on a double move or to throttle down and change direction.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Melton is a physical defensive back that excels in press-man but he's experienced in zone coverage with the ability to play in multiple coverages. He provides alignment versatility with his skill-set and experience allowing him to play on the perimeter and in the slot. Better athlete than given credit for, he should have no issues running with receivers or competing with them consistently at the catch point. He'll need to get his head around on the football faster and he'll have to not play with as much hesitation but the potential for him to become a solid number two corner for a team that puts an emphasis on running man coverage.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Cedar Creek High School in Egg Harbor City, New Jersey. He had offers from schools such as Boston College, Temple and others but he flipped his commitment from Purdue to Rutgers. His brother, Bo, played football at Rutgers and is currently on the Green Bay Packers. His father, Gary, played football at Rutgers from 1987 to 1991 and his mother, Vicki, played basketball at Rutgers from 1989 to 1993. First name is Malachai and will be 22-years old in April. Played in 43 career games with 40 career starts at Rutgers. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

TREY BENSON

RB | FLORIDA STATE
ROUND GRADE | LATE 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'0"

Weight: 216 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 31 ½"

Hand Size: 9 ¼"

40-Yard Dash: 4.39 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.52 seconds

Vertical Jump: 33.5"

Broad: Jump: 10' 2"

STRENGTHS

- Bigger running back that has great size and speed for the position.
- Very good pass-catcher that should excel on screens, swing and angle routes.
- Has the desired speed to take it the distance.
- Good overall contact balance for his size – shakes off tacklers while not losing his stride. .
- Gets downhill in a hurry with good lateral cuts and acceleration.

WEAKNESSES

- Bigger back but doesn't pick up blitzes consistently.
- Appears to have openings on tape and runs into contact rather than taking the yardage in front of him.
- Runs high through openings at times.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Benson enters the draft as one of the better running back prospects available. He's got a good blend of size and speed and is able to run in a zone and gap scheme. He's a patient runner and displays good burst through the second level. He'll need to work on lowering his pad level when getting through openings but it doesn't limit him from shaking off tacklers. Early in his career, he should find success as a pass-catcher and could immediately be a 3rd down option for an offense. His injury in 2020 could be concerning for longevity or a potential recurrence but I'd expect Benson to be drafted somewhere on day two with high expectations to succeed.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from St. Joseph High School in Greenville, Mississippi. While he had offers to schools such as Notre Dame, Penn State and others, he committed to Oregon. In addition to playing football, he also played basketball and was on the track and field team in high school. His PR for the 100-meter dash was 10.90 seconds. Suffered a terrible injury in 2020 that tore his ACL, MCL and hamstring. After appearing in 9 games with the Ducks, he transferred to Florida State. He played in 26 games with 16 starts for the Seminoles. Play style reminds me of T.J. Yeldon.

MIKE SAINRISTIL

CB | MICHIGAN
ROUND GRADE | LATE 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5'9 ½"

Weight: 182 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 30 ⅞"

Hand Size: 8 ½"

40-Yard Dash: 4.47 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.51 seconds

Vertical Jump: 40"

Broad Jump: 10' 11"

STRENGTHS

- Strong and physical for a player of his size.
- Has a knack for always being around the football – some of the best ball skills at the position.
- Willing tackler that will set the tone with big hits.
- Good fluidity and awareness in zone coverage.
- Works through the catch point with great effort and physicality.
- Provides inside-outside versatility.

WEAKNESSES

- Size could cause mismatches and issues against bigger receivers.
- Development could take time with only two years starting at cornerback.
- Can get flat-footed on double moves by shiftier receivers.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Sainristil is a physical defender that possesses inside-outside versatility for an NFL defense. He plays with the ability to play man or zone coverage but he seems best suited to play in zone coverage. His ball skills are encouraging for teams looking for playmakers. Meanwhile, his ability to read receivers from his prior days of playing the position is a benefit to his knowledge to produce in either man or zone coverage. His size will get tested but with how physical he plays, I could see a permanent move to the slot or at safety in his future. Teams could see a benefit to him patrolling the middle while being a tone setting playmaker.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Everett High School in Everett, Massachusetts. He had offers from Ole Miss, Wisconsin and others but ended up committing to Virginia Tech before flipping to Michigan. In addition to football, he also competed in track and field. His PR for the 55-meter dash was 7.07 seconds. He's also an established musician with being able to play the violin, piano and drums. Played three seasons at wide receiver and on special teams before switching to cornerback. Has 26 starts at cornerback. Was a team captain. Will be 24-years old. Accepted an invite to the 2024 Senior Bowl.

T.J. TAMPA

CB | IOWA STATE
ROUND GRADE | LATE 2ND ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'1"

Weight: 189 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 32 ⅛"

Hand Size: 9 ⅝"

40-Yard Dash: 4.58 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.64 seconds

STRENGTHS

- Good length and overall frame for the position.
- Physical at the line-of-scrimmage with good press skills.
- Trails receivers and shows good burst to close.
- Anticipates passes with hands ready to strike and disrupt.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs to get a touch faster when closing on receivers.
- Deep speed could get tested off his press.
- Times he appears to be going through the motions.
- Tackling has to improve – far too many misses or inconsistent effort on certain attempts.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Tampa is an intriguing cornerback prospect that has the tools needed to be a number one corner for an NFL defense. However, he will need some development as he enters the next level. He has a good frame with long arms that he uses to jam and redirect receivers when playing in press. He'll need to become more consistent with his technique and pad level but his effort and tackling technique needs the most improvement. The long speed he has will get tested but he shows good burst and patience in man and zone coverage. The tools possessed by Tampa are intriguing but they need sharpening and he seems best suited to start his career as a number three corner in a veteran room.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star prospect (per 24/7 Sports) from Lakewood High School in St. Petersburg, Florida. He had offers to schools such as Maryland, Wake Forest and others but committed to Iowa State. In addition to football, he also played high school basketball. Was a highly touted receiver prospect coming out of high school with over 1300 yards receiving and 15 touchdowns. Started 30 games for the Cyclones. Turned 22-years old in March of 2024. Was born in Norristown, Pennsylvania before moving to Jonesboro, Georgia. Moved to St. Petersburg at age 15.

JA'TAVION SANDERS

TE | TEXAS
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'4"

Weight: 245 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 32 ⅞"

Hand Size: 10 ⅛"

40-Yard Dash: 4.69 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.59 seconds

20-Yard Shuttle: 4.32 seconds

STRENGTHS

- Catches the ball away from his body on a consistent basis.
- Provides alignment versatility with ability to play in the slot or in-line.
- Will provide good run after-the-catch ability.
- Good ball skills while being able to make adjustments on the football when it's in the air.

WEAKNESSES

- Ability to block in the run game will get tested when aligned in-line.
- Not as fluid as other top tight ends – could limit certain routes and how he separates at the next level.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Whether it's a good or bad tight end class for the NFL Draft, Sanders would still be highly regarded as one of the better players at the position. He's got a versatile skill-set where he finds success playing in-line or operating out of the slot. He can run routes vertically up the seam and make great adjustments on the football while it's in the air but he's also shown that he can work efficiently in the short areas of the field as well. He'll need to get stronger and improve as a blocker but he should help immediately as a pass-catcher for a team in need of one at tight end.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 5-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Ryan High School in Denton, Texas. He had offers from schools such as Alabama, TCU and other top schools but he committed to Texas. In addition to football, he was also on the high school basketball team. He was primarily used on special teams when he was a true freshman and eventually was developed into a starter. Has started 27 straight games for the Longhorns. Will be 21-years old during his rookie season. His play style reminds me of Gerald Everett.

JALEN MCMILLAN

WR | WASHINGTON
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'1"

Weight: 197 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 32 ⅛"

Hand Size: 10"

40-Yard Dash: 4.47 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.53 seconds

Vertical Jump: 37"

Broad Jump: 10' 7"

STRENGTHS

- Efficient route runner with the desired flexibility and fluidity to get in-and-out of his breaks.
- Able to shake defenders by throttling down and hits double moves effectively.
- Has the speed that's needed to threaten defenders vertically.
- Catches away from his body – attacks the ball consistently.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs to get stronger to fight off press and to gain YAC.
- Thinner frame and lack of play strength is concerning at the catch point against physical defenders.
- Concentration drops occur on tape.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Teams looking for a plug-and-play receiver could find it with McMillan out of Washington. They'll need to alter their expectations as he may not be a number one receiver from the first day but he could produce on a consistent basis as a rookie. Best suited to play out of the slot, he's an efficient route runner that runs his routes with good pacing and fluidity to keep defenders guessing. His speed will help him create separation quickly but it will also pose a threat to defenses down the field. There's potential for him to develop into a borderline number one receiver but he seems most likely to be a number two or number three receiver for an offense.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from San Joaquin Memorial High School in Fresno, California. He had offers from top schools across the country such as Tennessee, LSU, Ohio State and others but committed to Washington. In addition to football, he also played baseball and was on the high school track and field team. For baseball, he was settled on USC and Oklahoma because they were open to him playing both baseball and football. In track, his PR for the 100-meter dash was 10.67 seconds. Play style is comparable to Josh Reynolds.

KAMREN KINCHENS

SAF | MIAMI (FL)
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5'11"

Weight: 203 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 31 ¼"

Hand Size: 9 ¾"

40-Yard Dash: 4.65 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.59 seconds

Vertical Jump: 35"

Broad Jump: 9' 2"

STRENGTHS

- Gifted tackler that comes up and hits on every play.
- Productive on the back-end of a defense with good ball skills.
- Able to play from the box with the ability to cover tight ends out of the slot.
- Flashes the range to go sideline-to-sideline from single-high alignments.

WEAKNESSES

- Angles need improvements in both the run and pass.
- Gets lost in space due to poor technique.
- Speed will get tested if pass-catchers get behind him.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Kinches is a productive safety with the desired size, athleticism and range to stick at the next level. His speed will get tested against faster receivers and he needs to improve his angles to the ball when attacking downhill. He's shown that he can play in a variety of alignments from a two-high shell, single-high or even as a buzz defender. He closes well on the football and looks to disrupt receivers at the catch point by punching through their hands or leveling them with a big hit. Expected to get drafted somewhere on the second day of the draft, I could see him earn a spot on special teams before developing into a starter.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Northwestern High School in Miami, Florida. He had offers from Alabama, Ole Miss, Florida and others but committed to the Hurricanes. Started five games as a true freshman and has started 22 games over the last two seasons. He missed some time in 2023 due to a head/neck injury. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

RAY DAVIS

RB | KENTUCKY
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5'8 ⅜"

Weight: 211 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 30 ¼"

Hand Size: 8 ⅞"

40-Yard Dash: 4.52 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.56 seconds

Vertical Jump: 35"

Broad: Jump: 9' 11"

STRENGTHS

- Dangerous pass-catcher that can make anything happen with the ball in his hands.
- Runs angle and swing routes consistently in the passing game.
- Runs with good patience and will let his blocks develop.
- Has a flexible lower half with quick feet – allows him to change direction and lower center of gravity easily.
- Does a nice job putting moves together to shake defenders.

WEAKNESSES

- Vision could improve on some of his cuts – will run right into traffic.
- Long speed could get tested against NFL talent.

OVERALL PROJECTION

One of the older prospects in the draft this year is Ray Davis from Kentucky. While he'll be 25-years old during his rookie season in the NFL, that shouldn't force teams to hesitate in drafting Davis. He's a weapon in the passing game and could become a quarterback's best friend with how effective he is at running angle and swing routes out of the backfield. Between the tackles, Davis lets blocks develop but he doesn't always see the openings in front of him. This hesitation will get him in trouble and he ends up running into traffic. That said, he's good in space with quick feet and a flexible lower half. There's potential for him to be a three-down back for whichever team drafts him.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Blair Academy in Blairstown, New Jersey. During his recruitment process he had offers to Purdue, Albany and others but he committed to Temple. In addition to football, he also was on the track and field team. His PR for the 100-meter dash was 11.17 seconds. During his time with Temple, he ran for over 900 rushing yards as a true freshman but after 16 games with the Owls, he transferred to Vanderbilt. While he played two seasons with the Commodores, he ended up transferring to Kentucky. He has 10 siblings. Competed in the 2024 Senior Bowl. Play style reminds me of Alfred Morris.

JONATHON BROOKS

RB | TEXAS
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'0"

Weight: 216 lbs

Class: Sophomore (RS)

Arm Length: 31 ½"

Hand Size: 9 ¼"

STRENGTHS

- Used sparingly with only 238 collegiate carries.
- Patient back that allows blocks to develop in front of him.
- Can run through initial contact from second level defenders.
- Downhill runner with good forward lean.
- Good jump-cutting ability through the hole or in the open field.

WEAKNESSES

- Runs too high through the hole. Pad level remains high when attempting lateral cuts.
- Tends to run into contact rather than finding ways around it – cuts into traffic.
- Coming off a torn ACL.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Brooks is an experienced back that played in 22 games with 8 starts in his career. Primarily a backup behind Bijan Robinson, he finally earned the starting job during the 2023 season. With that, he was able to generate over 1,110 rushing yards and 10 touchdowns on the season. Effective between the tackles, Brooks displays average-to-good burst when getting to the second level. Additionally, he's shown the necessary lateral movement to make defenders miss in tight spaces. While he can break initial contact from defenders, his vision should come into question as he tends to run into contact and traffic rather than trying to get out in space more. He's a patient runner but there's times that his patience gets him in trouble as he appears to have more hesitation with the ball in his hands. Overall, if healthy, he can develop into a starting back as a day 2 pick.

PLAYER NOTES

Listed as a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Hallettsville High School in Hallettsville, Texas. Despite having offers from Texas Tech, Colorado State and others, he committed to Texas. During his senior season, he had 295 carries for 3530 yards and 62 touchdowns. In addition to football, he played basketball and ran track in high school. His PR for the 200-meter dash was 23.86 seconds. Suffered a torn ACL against TCU in November of 2023. Play style reminds me of Miles Sanders.

JEREMIAH TROTTER JR

LB | CLEMSON
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'0"

Weight: 228 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 31 ½"

Hand Size: 9 ¼"

3-Cone Drill: 7.13 seconds

20-Yard Shuttle: 4.40 seconds

Bench Press: 21 reps

STRENGTHS

- Makes good pre-snap reads to communicate and adjust the defense.
- Looks comfortable in zone coverage – able to jump routes when playing hook/curl.
- Effective when blitzing up the middle or off-the-edge.
- Shows good athletic ability and movement skills when changing direction.
- Flashes good range and has shown he can stack-and-shed blocks.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs to become more consistent with how he takes on blocks – lack of length gets him chest to chest with offensive lineman.
- Form tackling needs improvement in the box – tends to let go of ball carriers.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Following in his father's footsteps to the NFL, Trotter Jr., has the ability to be a starting linebacker for a defense. He needs some refinement with how he takes on blocks and his tackling form will need to become more consistent in the NFL to be an every down player. His ability to blitz and drop into zone coverage should get him on the field for 3rd downs. With that, he should be able to find a role in nickel-packages early in his career with the potential for him to start down the road as a 'MIKE' linebacker.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from St. Joseph's High School in Philadelphia, PA. He had offers from schools such as Georgia Tech, Baylor, Maryland and others but committed to Clemson. He suffered a broken arm his junior year of high school. Started 26 straight games for Clemson and will only be 21-years old his rookie season. His father, Jeremiah Sr., spent 12-seasons in the NFL with Philadelphia, Washington and Tampa Bay.

JAVON BULLARD

SAF | GEORGIA
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5'10 ½"

Weight: 198 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 30 ¾"

Hand Size: 9"

40-Yard Dash: 4.47 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.51 seconds

STRENGTHS

- Flashes good range and tracking ability from split-safety alignments.
- Triggers downhill quickly and is able to come up in the run game.
- Shows great effort and consistency when tackling in the alley or along the sideline.
- Plays patient with good pad level and always willing to take on blocks.

WEAKNESSES

- More nuanced route runners can exploit his lack of closing speed on certain routes.
- Hip stiffness on vertical routes gives faster receivers easy separation from the slot.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Bullard is a well balanced safety who can cover and contribute in run support. Never shying away from contact, he attacks quickly downhill and is always willing to meet blockers or ball carriers with contact. He's versatile enough to play from single-high and split-safety alignments with good production and range in both alignments. Playing with quick feet, he should be able to mirror receivers or tight ends but there are times that stiffness in his hips can get him caught in the ground and it gives pass-catchers the needed separation. Overall, his production from multiple alignments is encouraging for a defense looking to develop a safety that can become a future starter in the NFL.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Baldwin High School in Milledgeville, Georgia. He had offers from Pittsburgh, South Carolina and others but committed to Georgia. In addition to football, he was on the track and field team in high school. His PR for the 200-meter dash was 23.03 seconds. He's started 22 games over the last two seasons for the Bulldog. In 2022, he was arrested on a DUI charge. He's also suffered a concussion, lower body and a shoulder injury in his career. Won two National Championships at Georgia. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

KHYREE JACKSON

CB | OREGON
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'4"

Weight: 196 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 32 ¾"

Hand Size: 9 ¼"

40-Yard Dash: 4.50 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.50 seconds

Vertical Jump: 36.5"

Broad Jump: 11' 1"

STRENGTHS

- Good length and play strength to jam and redirect receivers.
- Physical player on the perimeter with good tackling ability.
- Times his punches at the catch-point to disrupt passes consistently.
- Fluid and physical enough for man and zone coverage.

WEAKNESSES

- Plays with too much hesitation when flipping his hips off press.
- Tends to get too grabby downfield.
- Too much separation downfield on vertical routes – speed could get tested.

OVERALL PROJECTION

One of the older prospects in the 2024 NFL Draft, Jackson will be 25-years old before his rookie season officially kicks off in August. That could change his projection and longevity in the NFL but teams looking for immediate help on the perimeter or potentially at safety could be intrigued by his skill-set. He's got great length and physicality for the position. Meanwhile, he's super competitive at the catch point with timely punches to breakup passes. He'll need to become more confident when running vertically and he'll need to watch how much cloth he grabs downfield. But there's enough to work with and develop on teams searching for a press-man corner.

PLAYER NOTES

Jackson played high school football at Dr. Henry Wise High School in Upper Marlboro, Maryland. He originally played for Fort Scott Community College in Kansas during the 2019 season. After one season with 25 tackles and three interceptions, he became the number one JUCO prospect in the country and transferred to Alabama. After 21 games and one start with the Crimson Tide, he transferred to Oregon. Finished with 12 starts for the Ducks. Will be 25-years old in August. COmpeted at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

GABRIEL MURPHY

EDGE | UCLA
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'2"

Weight: 247 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 30 ½"

Hand Size: 9 ¼"

40-Yard Dash: 4.68 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.59 seconds

Vertical Jump: 39.5"

Broad Jump: 10' 3"

STRENGTHS

- Has some of the fastest and most effective hands for any pass-rusher in the draft.
- Works hands quickly and has effective counter moves to beat the opposition.
- Swim move is fast and gets him through lineman in a hurry.
- Shows alignment versatility on tape by winning in a variety of spots up front.
- Good initial snap quickness with a relentless motor.
- Displays good backside pursuit to chase down plays.

WEAKNESSES

- Shorter arms will cause concerns against NFL offensive lineman.
- When he gets chest-to-chest with offensive lineman, he can get turned and washed easily.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Murphy projects as a standup linebacker in an odd-front for an NFL defense. Playing with a relentless motor, he treats every play like it's his last play of his career. His hands are fast, effective and he's able to win in a variety of ways. Much of his play style is what we see from Alex Highsmith and the hope is that he's just as productive in the NFL. He'll need to get stronger and his short arms make him an outlier for the position but with his explosiveness and pass-rush plan, he should easily find a situational pass-rush role to start his career.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Bishop Lynch High School in Dallas, Texas. Despite having offers from Air Force, Navy and other schools, he committed to North Texas. After 3 seasons at North Texas, he transferred to UCLA and has started 26 games for the Bruins. His identical twin brother, Grayson played with him at North Texas and UCLA. Competed at the 2024 Shrine Bowl.

ROGER ROSENGARTEN

OT | WASHINGTON
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'5"

Weight: 308 lbs

Class: Junior (RS)

Arm Length: 33 ½"

Hand Size: 9 ⅝"

40-Yard Dash: 4.92 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.73 seconds

Vertical Jump: 30"

Broad Jump: 9' 5"

STRENGTHS

- Athletic tackle with good length for the position.
- Explodes out of his stances with quick feet and ready hands.
- Consistently displays a flexible and fluid lower half in both the run and pass game.
- Will look to finish blocks with a snatch-trap technique but plays with some torque.
- Has no limitations when pulling and getting out in space.

WEAKNESSES

- Frame could be limited to add mass and overall strength.
- Anchor could get tested against more powerful rushers at the next level.
- Will overset in pass protection and it will lead to him playing out of control.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Headed to the NFL, Rosengarten has the desired athletic profile needed to stick on a roster. Consistent over the last two seasons as a pass protector, he's shown that by not giving up a sack. Much of that is due to his quick feet, quick hands and ability to reset them when beat by the opposition. Best suited to play as a right tackle, there's a chance teams view him more as a swing tackle due to his athletic ability. The explosive pass sets and ability to finish blocks with a snatch-trap technique is an encouraging sign for evaluators. He'll need to get stronger but teams looking to add length and athleticism to their offensive line depth will find it here.

PLAYER NOTES

Rosengarten was rated as a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) out of Valor Christian High School in Littleton, Colorado. He played for former NFL receiver, Ed McCaffrey, in high school. In addition to playing football, he played baseball and basketball. In baseball, he played first base and in basketball, he averaged 15.6 PPG and 7.6 RPG as a forward. While he had offers to schools such as Ohio State, Notre Dame and others, he committed to Washington. He's made 28 consecutive starts at right tackle over the last two seasons for the Huskies. Competed at the 2023 Senior Bowl.

JUNIOR COLSON

LB | MICHIGAN
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'2"

Weight: 238 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 32 ½"

Hand Size: 9 ⅜"

STRENGTHS

- Does a good job scraping and meeting running backs in cutback lanes.
- Hits the opposition hard with good form tackles.
- Looks comfortable as a mid-hook defender in zone coverage.
- Has the speed to run with tight ends and running backs out of the backfield.

WEAKNESSES

- Doesn't disengage blocks quick enough and he gets sealed off easily.
- Production could skyrocket with improved recognition skills – reacts before reading the offense.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Colson is entering the NFL as a productive college linebacker with over three seasons of experience as a starter. He's athletic enough to play in a variety of alignments but he seems best suited to play between a '50' to a '90' as a 'Sam' linebacker. With his coverage skills, he can man cover tight ends and drop into mid-hook and hook/curl zones. All together, he'll need to improve on how he takes on blocks at the next level but he's got the desired skills to become an every down player with how well he tackles and covers.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Ravenwood High School in Brentwood, Tennessee. He had offers from USC, Maryland and others but committed to Michigan. He played OLB and WR in high school. Lived in Haiti until he was 9-years old. Played on the same high school team as Duke IOL Graham Barton. He made 7 starts at linebacker as a true freshman. Finished career with 36 starts at linebacker for the Wolverines.

BUCKY IRVING

RB | OREGON
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND
PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5'9"

Weight: 192 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 29 ½"

Hand Size: 9 ½"

40-Yard Dash: 4.55 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.54 seconds

Vertical Jump: 29 ½"

Broad: Jump: 9' 7"

STRENGTHS

- Has great change of direction ability with a flexible lower half.
- Operates efficiently in a zone scheme – shows that he can bend and break.
- Extends certain runs to the perimeter with good burst and strong contact balance.
- Runs hard and downhill – will contort his body to gain additional yardage.
- Established pass-catcher that can go the distance on screen passes and angle routes.

WEAKNESSES

- Takes some unnecessary shots in the open field.
- Has to run with better patience between the tackles.
- Technique on blitz pickups needs correcting – too narrow, head down or just slips off contact.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Irving lacks the explosiveness that other backs possess in this class but teams should appreciate his no-nonsense running style. He'll get downhill with good burst and acceleration. Most importantly, he'll make defenders pay with how he changes direction with ease due to his flexible lower half. Additionally, he's shown that he can produce on zone runs due to his ability to bend and break those runs. Having the desired contact balance and willingness to fight for every yard will win a team over and I think we could see him go somewhere on the second day of the draft. He may not have the size or speed to be an every down player but teams should find a way to get him involved in both the run and passing game.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Hillcrest High School in Country Club Hills, Illinois. Despite having offers to schools such as South Carolina, Michigan and several others, he committed to Minnesota. After one season with the Golden Gophers, he transferred to Oregon. In addition to football, he also played basketball in high school. His first name is Mar'Keise but was given the nickname "Bucky" from his father, Marcellus, who passed away when he was only two-years old.

JAMARI THRASH

WR | LOUISVILLE
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5'11 ¾"

Weight: 188 lbs

Class: Senior (RS)

Arm Length: 31"

Hand Size: 9 ⅝"

40-Yard Dash: 4.46 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.54 seconds

Vertical Jump: 34"

Broad Jump: 10' 0"

STRENGTHS

- Experienced route runner that can run an entire route tree.
- Great burst and pacing within his routes.
- Makes proper adjustments on back shoulder throws.
- Hand timing to high-point the football and catch away from his frame is good.

WEAKNESSES

- Could struggle against press and with contested catches against more physical defenders.
- Drops are a concern with 17 of them in his career (per PFF).

OVERALL PROJECTION

Thrash is one of the more underrated receivers in this year's draft. He's had consecutive seasons with solid production in two different schemes. Watching him play in both, you can see that he's experienced as a route runner and is able to run just about every route in the tree. While he doesn't have blazing speed, he's got good enough speed to run after the catch. He wins with the burst and pacing within his routes and he's able to run them at all three levels of the field. Projected to be a WR2/WR3, he seems likely to play out of the slot early in his career but there's potential for him to develop into a consistent weapon for an NFL offense.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Troup County High School in Lagrange, Georgia. Despite a visit to Georgia Tech, he was lightly recruited and only had offers from smaller schools such as Georgia Southern and Nevada. He ended up committing to Georgia State. In addition to football, he also played basketball and ran track in high school. His PR for the 200-meter dash was 23.91 seconds. After 4-years with the Panthers, he ended up transferring to Louisville. Played in 37 games at Georgia State and played in 12 games with Louisville. Competed in the 2024 Senior Bowl.

BRALEN TRICE

EDGE | WASHINGTON
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'3 ½"

Weight: 245 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 32 ½"

Hand Size: 9"

40-Yard Dash: 4.72 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.65 seconds

STRENGTHS

- Plays with more power than speed but has a good blend of both in his game.
- Displays a consistent motor to chase down ball carriers.
- Strong enough to execute push-pull moves and straight bullrush offensive lineman.
- Versatile and able to withstand contact on the inside and the outside.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs to develop some type of counter move(s) into his pass-rush plan.
- Must find a comfortable playing weight. Was listed in the 270 range during the season.
- Lacks lower body fluidity to change direction and bend consistently as a pass-rusher.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Moving to the NFL, Trice is an intriguing day two prospect with a good overall frame to withstand the contact he'll see at the next level. He'll need to figure out what weight is best for him as his speed is altered when he's at a heavier weight. Fortunately for defenses that run more of an even front, can use his power in both stopping the run and getting after the quarterback. He's strong enough to set the edge and drive the opposition into the quarterback. He'll need to fine tune his pass-rush plan to be successful on a consistent basis in the NFL but there's much to be desired for a team looking at a depth piece on the defensive line.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Sandra Day O'Connor High School in Glendale, Arizona. He had offers from schools such as Alabama, Notre Dame and others but committed to Washington. In addition to football, he also was on the track and field team. He was redshirted in 2019 and then started 29 games from 2021 to 2023. Was Defensive MVP of the 2022 Alamo Bowl. Turned 23-years old in February.

JAYLEN WRIGHT

RB | TENNESSEE
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5'10 ½"

Weight: 210 lbs

Class: Junior

Arm Length: 31 ½"

Hand Size: 9 ⅜"

40-Yard Dash: 4.38 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.55 seconds

Vertical Jump: 38"

Broad: Jump: 11' 2"

STRENGTHS

- Explosive back that is able to go 0-to-60 in the snap of a finger.
- Has the long speed needed to go the distance.
- Looks improved as a pass-catcher and could earn that role for a team early in his career.
- Good burst off his lateral cuts to help him get upfield in a hurry.
- Has the strength needed to gain additional yardage or shrug off defenders.

WEAKNESSES

- Runs with pad level too high on a consistent basis.
- Hesitation while looking for the big play(s) gets him in trouble – needs to take some of the short yardage gains.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Wright is the most explosive running back in the class this year. He's got legitimate track speed on the field and is able to turn a single into a home run at any given time. His improvements as a pass-catcher is encouraging and it wouldn't be surprising if teams put the ball in his hands early and often in his career. He'll need to work on his pad level and chip away at the short yardage plays that's given to him by defenses rather than always looking for the big play. It'll make him more efficient and will actually lead to more positive gains at the next level. Ultimately, there's much to be desired with his lateral quickness and burst through the second level that could make him a potential three-down back in the NFL.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Southern High School in Durham, North Carolina. Despite having offers to schools such as West Virginia, South Carolina and others, he committed to Tennessee. In addition to football, he also was on the track and field team in high school. His PR for the 55-meter dash was 6.29 seconds (fastest mark in the country at the time). He will be 21-years old on April 1st.

Hand Size: 9 ⅝"

40-Yard Dash: 4.74 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.64 seconds

Vertical Jump: 34.5"

Broad Jump: 10' 3"

STRENGTHS

- Works upfield with good burst and effective hand usage.
- Wins with a quick double swipe and is able to dip-and-rip consistently.
- Has good length for the position and is able to create separation on a consistent basis.
- Plays with good bend and effort against the run.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs to get stronger against the run. Will get turned or washed easily.
- Has to learn how to play more consistently at heels depth rather than just running the arc.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Isaac is a stand-up edge rusher that has an impressive set of tools to rush the passer and stop the run. He'll need to get stronger but he can get upfield in a hurry and he has the desired motor to make plays with backside pursuit. Impressive length and hand usage helps him get through or off blocks on a consistent basis. Best suited to be a pass-rush specialist to start his career, there's potential for him to develop into a starter if he can add some weight, get stronger and further develop his pass-rush plan.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Canarsie High School in Brooklyn, New York. Despite having offers from schools such as Florida State, Miami (FL) and others, he committed to Penn State. In addition to football, he also competed in track and field. Was a three-time captain in high school and was named a team captain in 2023. Suffered an achilles injury in 2021 that ended his season and took about 8 months to rehab. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

CAM HART

CB | NOTRE DAME
ROUND GRADE | 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'3"

Weight: 202 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 33"

Hand Size: 9 ⅜"

40-Yard Dash: 4.50 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.57 seconds

Vertical Jump: 39.5"

Broad Jump: 10' 10"

STRENGTHS

- Patient defender that plays square and remains under control.
- Has great size and length for the position.
- Uses long arms to jam receivers and redirect them off their route.
- Good size to high-point the football and compete on 50/50 balls.
- Keeps pad level low while remaining fluid in his backpedal.

WEAKNESSES

- Drifts in zone coverage and lets receivers behind him.
- Pad level changes/rises when receivers begin to change direction.
- Limited production compared to other defenders with the same experience.
- History of shoulder injuries is concerning for longevity.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Hart is a smart and experienced defender entering the NFL at the age of 24-years old. He plays patient and square as receivers release vertically upfield. His size and length is great for the position and it should help him compete consistently against NFL talent. He'll need to watch his pad level as he changes direction with receivers but his ability to run with receivers is encouraging. Best suited for man coverage, he is versatile and experienced enough to play in both man and zone. To start his career, Hart will develop as a number two cornerback that can contribute on special teams early.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Our Lady of Good Counsel High School in Olney, Maryland. He had offers from schools such as Virginia Tech, Michigan State and others but committed to Notre Dame. Suffered shoulder injury in 2019 that ended his season after 3 games. Recorded a sack in his first career game at Notre Dame. Ranked as number 38 player on Bruce Feldman's Freak List. Played in 36 games with 32 starts over the last three seasons. Competed at 2024 Senior Bowl.

40-Yard Dash: 5.21 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.78 seconds

Vertical Jump: 25.5"

Broad Jump: 8' 8"

STRENGTHS

- Explodes out of his stance in pass protection.
- Plays square and under control.
- Punches are timely and he's able to reset his hands quickly.
- Grip strength is a huge benefit in pass protection.
- Drives defenders with his inside hand.
- Flexible lower half and is able to bring pad level down consistently.

WEAKNESSES

- Hands look to latch and it causes him to expose his chest.
- Lacks consistency when climbing to the second level - gets stuck on the combo block.
- Doesn't always finish his blocks in the run game.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Glaze is an experienced starter with 30-plus starts in his career. Splitting time between left and right tackle, he's shown the ability to anchor consistently at either spot. He shows good quickness out of his stance and is consistently square to the opposition. His hands strike quickly and he's able to control defenders due to his grip strength and ability to reset his hands. Despite how he explodes out of his stance in pass protection, there are instances where faster edge rushers are able to get the outside corner on him. With major improvements already made in his game, Glaze should have an easy transition into the NFL as a guard or tackle.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) out of West Mecklenburg High School in Charlotte, North Carolina. While he had offers to FIU, App State and others, he ended up committing to Maryland. Appeared in one game during the 2020 season before getting redshirted. Started 32 games at Maryland (16 games at LT and 16 games at RT). Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

Hand Size: 9 ⅞"

40-Yard Dash: 4.45 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.53 seconds

Vertical Jump: 38.5"

Broad Jump: 11' 1"

STRENGTHS

- Explodes out of his stance and gets upfield quickly.
- Has the speed that's necessary to threaten defenses vertically.
- Withstands contact on routes to the middle of the field – will bounce off and run after-the-catch.
- Attacks the football while it's in the air.
- Can win in contested catch situations.

WEAKNESSES

- Will take an extra step or two when throttling down and changing direction.
- Arm length and play strength could get tested on contested catches.

OVERALL PROJECTION

There's much to be desired with the skill-set of Jermaine Burton and his transition to the NFL. He's got a good overall frame to withstand contact and compete during contested catches on a consistent basis. He'll need to get stronger but there's potential for him to be a viable option for teams in the middle of the field and as a deep threat. Getting out of his stance, he shows great burst and gets upfield in a hurry while running his routes at a good pace. Able to play anywhere on the field, there's potential for him to become a solid number two receiver for an NFL offense that needs a receiver to create big plays downfield.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Calabasas High School in Calabasas, California. He had offers to plenty of top schools such as Tennessee, UCLA and others. He had committed to Miami (FL) and LSU before officially committing to Georgia. After two seasons with the Bulldogs, he transferred to Alabama. Was coached by former NFL linebacker Chris Claiborne.

Hand Size: 8 ¾"

40-Yard Dash: 4.48 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.51 seconds

Vertical Jump: 42"

Broad Jump: 11' 3"

STRENGTHS

- Fluid athlete that shows good click-and-close ability.
- Provides inside-outside versatility for a defense.
- Shows comfortability in both zone and man coverage.
- Hips are fluid when opening his hips and running with receivers.

WEAKNESSES

- Lack of length could become problematic against longer and bigger receivers.
- Has to improve angles to the football in both the running and passing game.
- Form tackling has to improve – far too many missed tackles.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Phillips is one of the more explosive athletes in the 2024 NFL Draft. He's fluid with good versatility to play inside or outside for a defense. His tackling will need to improve as he misses far too many tackles but teams looking for a pure cover corner will get that with him. He looks best suited for zone coverage but he does have experience playing in man coverage and he's athletic enough to mirror or run with receivers. More of a developmental prospect somewhere on day two, I'd expect Phillips to come in and play on special teams and be a valuable number three cornerback for a team in year one. There's potential for him to develop into a future starter for an NFL defense.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Mauldin High School in Mauldin, South Carolina. He had offers from N.C. State, Tennessee, West Virginia and others but committed to Kentucky. In addition to football, he also competed in track and field in high school. His PR for the 100-meter dash was 11.00 seconds. Won a state championship with a jump of 49' 4" in the triple jump. His father, Carlos, played linebacker at Kentucky. His brother, C.J. played football at Morehead State in 2015. Graduated in December of 2023 with a degree in integrated strategic communication. 40-Yard Dash: 4.49 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.53 seconds

Vertical Jump: 37.5"

Broad Jump: 10' 10"

STRENGTHS

- Experienced defensive back with the versatility to play cornerback or safety.
- Plays physically at the line-of-scrimmage and forces receivers to one-dimensional releases.
- Aggressive at the catch-point and when coming up to tackle.
- Shows good lateral quickness to run in the hip pocket of receivers on in-breaking routes.

WEAKNESSES

- Will get too grabby in coverage. Could lead to penalties in the NFL.
- Gives up too much of a cushion on deeper routes – opens hips vertically and then hesitates.
- Doesn't always get his head around to play the ball when it's in the air.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Green is a physical press-man corner with experience on the perimeter, in the slot and at safety for the Seminoles. Aggressive at the catch-point, he's able to deflect passes with ease and shows great effort when doing so. He'll need to watch his hands in the NFL as he tends to grab and pull receivers downfield but teams will love his physicality. In zone coverage, he tends to drift or play with some hesitation but he looks fluid and able to play in a cover 3 or quarters coverage.

Vertical Jump:

Broad Jump:

STRENGTHS

- Has great size and length for the position.
- Plays with quick feet – able to mirror receivers or tight ends out of the slot.
- Closes quickly on the football and uses length to deflect passes.
- Looks comfortable covering the slot or rotating and buzzing down.
- Good ball skills with big play potential when he intercepts passes.

WEAKNESSES

- Far too many missed tackles on tape – has to improve form tackling.
- Pad level rises when turning upfield to run vertically.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Bullock is a fun and frustrating watch all at the same time. The athleticism and ability to make big hits jumps off the screen. But when there are good stretches of play, there are also bad stretches too. Much of the bad is fixable with improvements on form tackling, hip fluidity and any coverage lapses that can occur. If an NFL team can refine those tools, Bullock could end up being one of the better defenders from this class. Teams will value his size, length and production for the position. Meanwhile, there will be quite a few defensive coordinators that will want to mold him into a defensive chess piece due to his alignment versatility and ball skills. At some point in his career, he seems destined to start for an NFL defense .

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from John Muir High School in Pasadena, California. He had offers from Arizona, Texas A&M and other schools but he committed to USC. Was a successful receiver in high school with 40 receptions for 914 yards and 8 touchdowns. Appeared in 26 games with 14 starts for the Trojans. Will be 21-years old on April 30th, 2024.

SEDRICK VAN PRAN

IOL | GEORGIA
ROUND GRADE | LATE 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'4"

Weight: 298 lbs

Class: Junior (RS)

Arm Length: 31 ⅜"

Hand Size: 9 ½"

40-Yard Dash: 5.20 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.77 seconds

3-Cone Drill: 7.46 seconds

20-Yard Shuttle: 4.82 seconds

STRENGTHS

- Experienced with 44 straight starts at center for Georgia.
- Good overall athleticism for the position.
- Shows that he can operate in space.
- Aggressive with good snap-to-step quickness.
- Strong hands and shows the ability to finish blocks in the run game.

WEAKNESSES

- Frame could be maxed out at only 298 pounds.
- Lack of length could cause him to get driven back into the pocket.
- Pad level needs improvement as he can pop-up out of his stance.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Van Pran enters the NFL as a potential plug-and-play interior offensive lineman for a team. He's likely to play center as he's made 44 straight starts at the position for the Bulldogs. He's a good athlete and shows that he's willing to finish blocks in the run game. His frame could get tested as he needs to add some weight and muscle to his frame but his lack of length could create issues against longer interior rushers. Overall, he looks capable of playing in a zone or gap scheme and depending on the depth on the interior, he could find himself starting in year one.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Warren Easton High School in New Orleans, Louisiana. He had offers from a ton of top schools such as Florida, Oklahoma, Auburn and others but he committed to Georgia. In addition to football, he also competed on the track and field team. Has started 44 straight games for the Bulldogs offense. Was a team captain. Won two National Championships at Georgia. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl. Play style reminds me of Lloyd Cushenberry.

MICHAEL HALL JR

IDL | OHIO STATE
ROUND GRADE | LATE 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'3"

Weight: 290 lbs

Class: Sophomore (RS)

Arm Length: 33 ½"

Hand Size: 10"

40-Yard Dash:

10-Yard Split:

Vertical Jump:

Broad Jump:

STRENGTHS

- Explosive first-step with good lateral quickness to defeat guards and centers.
- Effective when using a push-pull or swim move to beat the opposition.
- Sheds blocks with active hands and follows through with active feet.
- Athletic and versatile enough to rush inside or outside on offensive tackles.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs to get stronger for handling double teams and squeezing blocks down.
- Pops right up out of his stance – needs to play with lower pad level.
- Has to improve his pass-rush plan by using his hands faster and more consistently.

OVERALL PROJECTION

If Hall was a touch stronger or bigger, he'd be talked about more in this draft. But working with what we got, he's got long arms for the position and his explosive first step is impressive. There are times that he fires out without establishing a plan-of-attack with his hands. However, when he does, he sheds blocks quickly and he's at his best when using his violent swim move. He looks athletic enough to match-up against any offensive lineman he faces but he'll need to get stronger as he will face more combo blocks and reach blocks in the NFL. To start his career, he's likely to be a rotational defensive tackle that primarily plays as a 3-technique for a defense.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Streetsboro High School in Streetsboro, Ohio. He had offers from schools such as Alabama, Florida State and others but he committed to Ohio State. In addition to football, he also played high school basketball. Suffered a broken hand his senior season of high school football. Dealt with a shoulder injury in 2022 and an undisclosed injury in 2023. Will be 21-years old in June. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

BLAKE FISHER

OT | NOTRE DAME
ROUND GRADE | LATE 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'6"

Weight: 310 lbs

Class: Sophomore (RS)

Arm Length: 34 ⅜"

Hand Size: 10"

40-Yard Dash: 5.20 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.82 seconds

Vertical Jump: 28"

Broad Jump: 9' 6"

STRENGTHS

- Uses length to create separation in pass protection.
- Gets out of his stance in a hurry – especially in a 45-degree set.
- Shows that he can anchor and get under defenders with good pad level and a strong lower half.
- Willing run blocker who will drive defenders and clear rushing lanes for running backs.

WEAKNESSES

- Hand placement will get him in trouble – often too wide or grabs too much cloth.
- Can get out in space but lacks the lateral quickness to do it consistently.
- Let's defenders hit his chest first – hand speed could get faster.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Whenever watching Fisher from Notre Dame, it's easy to see a developmental tackle that can be a solid NFL starter at right tackle. He's got the tools but needs refinement with his hands and some of the lateral movement needed in his lower body. Regardless, he's got the desired length to play tackle and he's a strong run blocker. Comfortable getting out of his stance with a 45-degree set, he could be an adequate pass blocker in year one or year two of his career. Overall, there's much to work with and he appears to be a tackle that will end up being a day 2 pick for an NFL team and when it's all said and done, he'll be labeled as a solid pro.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Avon High School in Avon, Indiana. Despite having offers from Georgia, LSU, USC and others, he committed to Notre Dame. Was redshirted as a true freshman. Made 27 career starts at right tackle. Turned 21-years old in March. Suffered a meniscus injury in 2021. Has made 26 straight starts for the Fighting Irish.

BRANDON DORLUS

EDGE | OREGON
ROUND GRADE | LATE 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'3"

Weight: 283 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 33 ¼"

Hand Size: 9 ⅜"

40-Yard Dash: 4.85 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.68 seconds

Vertical Jump: 30'5"

Broad Jump: 9' 3"

STRENGTHS

- Has an explosive first step with a powerful punch.
- Versatile and is able to align anywhere along the defensive line.
- Arm length and power helps him drive the opposition back into the pocket.
- Swim move is effective when rushing the passer.

WEAKNESSES

- Goes through the motions on his rip move and doesn't generate enough power when using it.
- Conditioning and effort needs improvement for the NFL.
- Plays with too high of pad level once the ball is snapped.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Dorlus was far more impressive in 2022 than he was in 2023 but he should still get drafted somewhere on day three of the NFL Draft. His alignment versatility will be an asset for teams that run multiple defensive fronts but he seems best suited to play as a 3-technique in the NFL. He plays with more power than speed but when he chooses to time the snap, he does have an explosive first step. There are too many times on tape where he goes through the motions but his swim move and ability to bullrush will be ways he stays productive. Best suited to be a depth piece to start his career, he has the size and tools to be developed into more for a defense.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Deerfield Beach High School in Deerfield Beach, Florida. He had offers to schools such as Florida, Baylor, Virginia and others but he ended up committing to Oregon after flipping from Virginia Tech. In addition to football, he also played basketball in high school. Played in nine games as a true freshman and has started 40 games over the last three seasons. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

DOMINICK PUNI

IOL | KANSAS
ROUND GRADE | LATE 3RD ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'5"

Weight: 313 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 33 ⅜"

Hand Size: 10 ⅛"

40-Yard Dash: 5.35 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.86 seconds

Vertical Jump: 30"

Broad Jump: 8' 11"

STRENGTHS

- Versatile offensive lineman that has experience playing guard and tackle in college.
- Plays with good balance and control in pass protection.
- Displays good quickness when pulling and reaching - doesn't appear to be limited in space.
- Will seal off defenders at the second level when getting out in space or when climbing.

WEAKNESSES

- Can open his hips in pass protection. Does overset in both the run and pass game.
- Pad level is too high in many of his reps.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Moving onto the NFL, Puni has the tools needed to develop and stick onto an NFL roster. His versatility will be highly coveted by teams and it wouldn't be surprising if he plays as a swing tackle, when needed. Ultimately, he looks best suited to be a guard or center in the NFL. He's shown good quickness in space but his patience and body control in pass protection is impressive. He may not be the strongest finisher of the group but he can kick-out defenders regularly and seal blocks at the second level. Teams should look to draft him on late day 2 or early day 3 with the hopes of developing into a starter down the road.

PLAYER NOTES

Puni wasn't ranked in any of the recruiting databases. Originally played football at Central Missouri before transferring to Kansas in 2022. In 2018, he started 3 games at right tackle and in 2019, he started 13 games at left tackle. Started 22 games for Kansas over the last two seasons. His brothers, Derrick and Div, played at Central Missouri. Derrick was a UDFA with the Dallas Cowboys. His sister, Brianna, played college basketball at Eastern Michigan and Illinois State. He competed in volleyball and track and field in high school.

DAIJUN EDWARDS

RB | GEORGIA
ROUND GRADE | 4TH ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5'9 ⅝"

Weight: 207 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 29 ¾"

Hand Size: 9 ½"

Broad: Jump: 9' 6"

STRENGTHS

- One of the best blockers at the position in the class – picks up blitzes consistently.
- Jump cuts and changes direction with ease.
- Flexible lower half with good burst through the hole.
- Runs hard and has the desired contact balance to bounce off arm tackles.
- Makes defenders miss in tight spaces.

WEAKNESSES

- Will try to bounce runs but lacks the speed or explosiveness needed to get outside consistently.
- Limited usage in the passing game and dealt with some drops when used.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Teams looking for just a solid back that can run efficiently between the tackles and is an asset in protecting the quarterback will love the skill-set that Edwards provides. He's at his best when able to jump-cut and change direction but his lack of speed or explosiveness will limit how far some of his touches go on the field. Displaying a flexible lower half and good overall burst, teams can use him as a change-of-pace back with the option of utilizing his willingness to block defenders in the passing game.

PLAYER NOTES

Edwards was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Colquitt County High School in Moultrie, Georgia. Despite having offers from Florida State, Kentucky and other schools, he stayed in the state of Georgia and committed to the Bulldogs. Experienced back for Georgia with 51 games played in his career. Started 9 games in 2023 and has experience on special teams. Most of his career, he's been part of rotation in the Georgia backfield. Won two National Championships at Georgia. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

TYKEE SMITH

SAF | GEORGIA
ROUND GRADE | 4TH ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5'10"

Weight: 202 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 31 ⅝"

Hand Size: 9 ¼'

40-Yard Dash: 4.46 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.58 seconds

Vertical Jump: 36"

Broad Jump: 10' 0"

STRENGTHS

- Physical player that's capable of playing in the box on a consistent basis.
- Good tackler that hits hard and is able to get downhill quickly.
- Drives blockers back with power and is able to work hands to get off blocks quickly.
- Versatile player with the desired skill-set to cover receivers out of the slot.

WEAKNESSES

- Hips are tight when turning up field and will get beat on double moves.
- Step late when trying to break up passes at the catch point. Has to react sooner.
- Suffered knee injuries in 2021 and 2023.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Smith enters the NFL Draft as one of the more overlooked safeties in the class. He's versatile enough to play in split-safety alignments and he can cover the slot but his speed will get tested against faster receivers. His ability down in the box is encouraging for teams that are searching for physical defenders and want players that can help against the run. There appears to be stiffness in Smith's hips when opening vertically or trying to change direction with pass-catchers but he could excel in zone coverage from a split-safety alignment. He'll be a developmental prospect to start his career with special teams ability but with his improved ball skills and tackling ability, there's potential for him to eventually develop into a starter.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Imhotep Institute Charter School in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. He had offers from N.C. State, Virginia and others but ended up committing to West Virginia. After 22 games and two seasons with the Mountaineers, he transferred to Georgia. Was limited in his first season with Georgia due to a knee injury. Suffered a minor knee injury in 2023 but returned quickly from the injury. Recorded 4 interceptions in 2023. Won two National Championships with Georgia. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

THEO JOHNSON

TE | PENN STATE
ROUND GRADE | 4TH ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'6"

Weight: 259 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 33"

Hand Size: 10 ¼"

40-Yard Dash: 4.57 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.55 seconds

Vertical Jump: 39.5"

Broad Jump: 10' 5"

STRENGTHS

- Willing run blocker when aligned in the slot or in-line.
- Provides alignment versatility when playing in-line or the slot.
- Shows that he's able to withstand contact at the catch-point or in contested catch situations.
- Runs through arm tackles and is able to run after-the-catch.
- Has the desired speed to run up the seam and create mismatches against linebackers.

WEAKNESSES

- Blocking technique could use some refinement with his pad level and hand placement.
- Doesn't always throttle down to sink his hips when running his routes – this results in lack of separation and high pad level.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Whenever watching the Penn State offense, Johnson always popped. The more you dissect his game, the more you can see him transitioning into a solid tight end in the NFL. He's got the desired athleticism and versatility to block or run routes and catch the football. He can catch the ball away from his frame and he shows that he's athletic enough to run after the catch. His route running needs work as he's not as consistent laterally as other tight ends but there's much to be desired within his skill-set to produce from a depth piece to a potential number one tight end.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Holy Names High School in Windsor, Ontario, Canada. He had offers from a plethora of top schools such as Alabama, Florida State, Michigan and others but he committed to Penn State. Despite playing in Canada, his high school would play football games against teams from Michigan. His father, Nate, played football and ran track at Hillsdale College. His brother, Dominic, played football at Buffalo. Started 29 games at Penn State. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

MALIK MUSTAPHA

SAF | WAKE FOREST
ROUND GRADE | 4TH ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5'10"

Weight: 209 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 30 ⅛"

Hand Size: 9"

Bench Press: 22 reps

Vertical Jump: 41.5"

Broad Jump: 10' 6"

STRENGTHS

- Great build for the position with a muscular frame.
- Meets running backs in the alley with big hits and great form tackling.
- Triggers downhill quickly and attacks the opposition with a vengeance.
- Versatile enough to cover the slot, play in the box or carry split-safety alignments.

WEAKNESSES

- Will bite on double moves or get turned around easily.
- Can get too handsy or grabby in coverage.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Teams looking for a tone-setter for their defense and special teams unit will get that by drafting Mustapha out of Wake Forest. He's a physical defender that levels the opposition with big hits consistently. The way he comes up and plays the run in the alley or in the box is impressive and could earn him a role in 'Big Nickel' packages for a defense. Defenses will benefit from his versatility to play down in the box or cover tight ends and receivers from the slot. He'll need to improve on giving up such a big cushion on certain routes but when he's able to compete at the catch point, his strength and physicality ends up working in his favor. There's a chance for him to develop into a starter but early in his career he'll be a depth piece on defense with a key role on special teams.

PLAYER NOTES

Wasn't ranked on any recruiting databases and was lightly recruited coming out of Weddington High School in Matthews, North Carolina. He committed to Richmond and played four games during the 2020-2021 season. He then transferred to Wake Forest and has played in 35 games for the Demon Deacons. In addition to football, he also competed in track and field in high school. His PR for the 100-meter dash was 11.53 seconds. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

PATRICK PAUL

OT | HOUSTON
ROUND GRADE | 4TH ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'7 ½"

Weight: 331 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 36 ¼"

Hand Size: 9 ⅜"

40-Yard Dash: 5.13 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.77 seconds

Vertical Jump: 29"

3-Cone Drill: 7.65 seconds

STRENGTHS

- Tremendous length for the position with the ability to lock out or drive defenders.
- Willing to finish his blocks in the run game.
- Plays with good patience and has the desired foot speed to mirror defenders.

WEAKNESSES

- Will open his hips in pass protection against speed rushers.
- Needs to better utilize his length as he lets defenders push into his chest to collapse the pocket.
- Hands often hit wide – needs to improve his hand placement.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Paul is an intriguing offensive tackle that has the developmental tools to become an eventual starter for a team. He's got the desired athleticism and length for the position but he needs refinement with his hand placement and has to limit the times he oversets in pass protection. There are times that he's slow out of the gates or he takes bad angles in his kick slide and it leads to him opening his hips too frequently. Overall, he's a willing blocker and with improved technique, he could be a starter at either tackle spot for a team.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Jersey Village High School in Houston, Texas. He had an offer from Tulsa but committed to Houston. In addition to football, he also competed on the track and field team. His brother, Chris, played offensive line at Tulsa and was a 7th round pick to the Washington Commanders in the 2022 NFL Draft. His brother, Nick, played offensive line at Northeastern State. Despite being born in Houston, he spent 2 ½ years in Nigeria. Started 44 games for the Cougars. Will be 24-years old in November. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

EMANI BAILEY

RB | TCU
ROUND GRADE | 4TH ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 5' 7"

Weight: 202 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 29 ⅞"

Hand Size: 9 ¾"

40-Yard Dash: 4.61 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.57 seconds

Vertical Jump: 33.5"

Broad: Jump: 9' 8"

STRENGTHS

- Smaller back that runs with a vengeance.
- Eyes take him to open rushing lanes.
- Has good contract balance and tends to shake initial contact well.
- Lowers his center of gravity and is able to get skinny and run low through the hole.
- Physical when taking on defenders during pass protection.
- Speed picks up as he runs and his ability to fall forward always leads to additional yards.

WEAKNESSES

- Cuts are tight and aren't as fluid as other backs in the class.
- Long speed will get tested consistently.
- Smaller back raises questions on overall usage in the NFL.
- Pass protection technique needs improvements.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Bailey is one of those players that the more you watch of him, the more you appreciate the way he runs. Limited due to his speed and size but he plays like every play is his last. Teams will appreciate that from him. While he's a smaller back, he doesn't let his size limit him on tape. Meanwhile, he's experienced running in both gap and zone blocking schemes. As he runs through the line-of-scrimmage, he's able to lower his center of gravity as he gets skinny though the hole and falls forward for additional yardage on a consistent basis. Physical when running the ball and when picking up blitzes, he could find himself in a 3rd down role early in his career.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Ryan High School in Denton, Texas. He didn't have major offers like other backs but he did receive offers from Tulsa and Northwestern State. Ultimately, he committed to Louisiana. After 16 games with the Ragin' Cajuns, he entered the transfer portal and transferred to TCU. In addition to football, he also was on the high school track and field team. His PR for the 100-meter dash was 11.04 seconds. His brother, Jordyn, is a wide receiver at TCU. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl. Play style resembles Devonta Freeman.

BRENDEN RICE

Hand Size: 9 ⅝"

40-Yard Dash: 4.55 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.55 seconds

Vertical Jump: 36.5"

Broad Jump: 9' 11"

STRENGTHS

- Great size for the position with long arms.
- Plays physical and is able to withstand contact to RAC.
- Efficient when using hesitation hop release against press.
- Size and catch radius help him become a threat in the red-zone.

WEAKNESSES

- Feet aren't as quick as other receivers – long strides lead to him taking longer to throttle down.
- Could track the ball better when contested vertically downfield.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Following in the footsteps of his dad to the NFL, Rice has big shoes to fill. After all, his father is the greatest wide receiver in the history of football. But those shouldn't be the expectations of him as he enters the NFL. Putting more realistic expectations on him should ease his transition to the next level. For starters, Rice has the skill-set to easily be projected as a WR2 or WR3 for an offense. Built like a prototypical 'X' receiver, he could fill that void for a team in search of one. He plays a physical brand of football and shows that he's at his best when running hitch and comeback routes. He'll need to work on becoming more fluid within his lower half but he does possess the ability to run after-the-catch. It may take him a season to become a full-time contributor to an offense but the potential to develop into a consistent pass-catcher is there for him.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Hamilton High School in Chandler, Arizona. He had offers from Texas A&M, Oklahoma State and others but committed to Colorado. After 17 games played at Colorado, he transferred to USC. In addition to football in high school, he also was on the track and field team and played basketball. His PR for the 100-meter dash was 10.78 seconds. His father, Jerry Rice, is an NFL Hall of Famer and holds the record for the most receptions, yardage and touchdowns in a career. His brother, Qualen Cunningham, played defensive end at Texas A&M. Rice started 24 games for the Trojans. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl.

SPENCER RATTLER

QB | SOUTH CAROLINA
ROUND GRADE | 4TH ROUND

PRE–DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'0"

Weight: 211 lbs

Hand Size: 9 ⅞"

40-Yard Dash: 4.95 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.63 seconds

Vertical Jump: 32"

Broad Jump: 9' 0"

STRENGTHS

- No limitations with his arm strength – can get the ball anywhere on the field.
- Plays like a shortstop in baseball with throws from different arm angles – makes a great diving throw against Georgia.
- Tough player that takes shots in the open field and in the pocket.
- Accurate passer with good ball placement to make life easy for receivers.

WEAKNESSES

- Limited athlete that will get chased down extending plays beyond the pocket.
- Can force throws into non-existent throwing windows.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Rattler has made quite the impression during the pre-draft process and the hope is that he's matured enough to stick with an NFL team as a backup to start his career. His arm talent and toughness could make him a potential starter but he's a limited athlete and his aggressive play style could limit some of his production. Overall, he's an experienced player with 42 career starts and the tools worth drafting as a developmental quarterback. There's a chance that he sneaks into being selected on the second day of the draft but either way, he should sit behind a veteran before being handed the keys to potentially drive the car.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 5-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Pinnacle High School in Phoenix, Arizona. He had offers from a plethora of top schools such as Notre Dame, Alabama and others but he committed to Oklahoma. After 3 seasons with the Sooners and the emergence of Caleb Williams, he transferred to South Carolina. In addition to football, he also played basketball in high school and averaged 10.0 PPG and 2.0 APG. He threw for over 11,000 passing yards in high school. Was MVP of Elite 11 Camp in Texas. Was featured on the Netflix documentary called QB1: Beyond the Lights. He was suspended in high school for violating a district code of conduct. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl. Athletic profile is comparable to Gardner Minshew. Will be 24-years old in September.

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 31 ⅜"

Hand Size: 8 ¼"

40-Yard Dash:

10-Yard Split:

Vertical Jump:

Broad Jump: 9' 6"

STRENGTHS

- Appears comfortable in press-man and has experience playing in zone.
- Able to jam and redirect receivers when playing press.
- Works outside-in against receivers in the run game.
- Plays physical and looks to tackle in the run game.

WEAKNESSES

- Click and close ability could use some improvements – plays with hesitation.
- Dip in production with his ball skills – turning to the football and poor angles is the root cause.
- Plays upright while staring in the backfield when he's playing in zone coverage.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Carson may not be a "ready-made" prospect but he has the tools to develop into a CB2 or CB3 for a defense. Physical when playing press, he's able to redirect receivers and he shows good recovery speed when receivers run vertically. If he turns his head around sooner, he will see an increase in production but for the most part, he seems to be in a fairly good position when the ball is in the air. Whether it be in off-man or in zone coverage, he tends to play with some hesitation but the defenses that play more man coverage will value his ability. He's more than likely an early day 3 pick to provide depth and special teams ability but the tools are there for Carson to have a bigger role for a defense one day.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from North Point High School in Waldorf, Maryland. He had offers from schools such as Army, East Carolina and others but committed to Wake Forest. In addition to football, he also played basketball and was on the track and field team in high school. Recorded 25 tackles and an interception as a true freshman. Has started 19 games over the last two seasons. Suffered a lower body injury in 2022. Turned 22-years old in March. Competed at the 2024 Senior Bowl. His play style reminds me of Jerry Jacobs.

STRENGTHS

- Provides an offense with great versatility with his ability to play in-line, H-back and in the slot.
- Shows good run after-the-catch ability in the short and intermediate areas of the field.
- Usage in pre-snap motions could create mismatches with his athleticism in the open field.
- Plays tough as a blocker and is able to run after-the-catch.

WEAKNESSES

- Needs to improve blocking technique.
- Lack of length could be problematic when blocking or in contested catch situations.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Still developing as a blocker, Jaheim Bell enters the NFL as a reliable pass-catcher with good alignment versatility for an offense. Best suited to align in the slot due to his smaller frame, he could find himself in a role for a team that values H-backs that can get in front of defenders in the run game or check release and run routes in the short areas of the field. Bell offers immediate run after-the-catch ability but if he's contested at the catch point, he could struggle in the NFL. Overall, he's best suited to provide depth for an offense that uses multiple tight ends in their offense and are looking for a player that can help move the sticks or provide value on special teams.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 4-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Valdosta High School in Lake City, Florida. He had offers from schools such as Ole Miss, LSU and others but he ended up committing to Florida before flipping to South Carolina. He suffered a torn ACL during his senior season of high school. In addition to football, he also played basketball in high school. He avered 4.8 PPG and 2.8 RPG during his 46 games played. He played in 30 games with 11 starts at South Carolina before transferring to Florida State. He started 9 games for the Seminoles and recorded 39 receptions for 503 yards and two touchdowns. Competed in the 2024 Senior Bowl.

DARIUS MUASAU

LB | UCLA
ROUND GRADE | 4TH ROUND

PRE-DRAFT MEASURABLES

Height: 6'0"

Weight: 225 lbs

Class: Senior

Arm Length: 31 ½"

Hand Size: 9 ½"

40-Yard Dash: 4.70 seconds

10-Yard Split: 1.59 seconds

Vertical Jump: 36.5"

Broad Jump: 9' 9"

STRENGTHS

- Very productive player with over 430+ tackles in his career.
- Comfortable dropping in curl-to-flats on passing downs.
- Good overall tackler that should find success defending the run.
- Always around the football due to his range and motor.

WEAKNESSES

- Speed will get tested at the next level – especially on outside zone runs and jet sweeps.
- Can get out of position from operating too quickly or due to pre-determined reads.
- Has to work off blocks more consistently. Gets sealed off too easily.

OVERALL PROJECTION

Muasau is a high-effort linebacker that was incredibly productive at the college level. There's some speed and size limitations within his game but he could be an early-down player with special teams ability early in his career. He'll need to work his hands faster and more frequently when taking on blocks but he's a strong tackler and always finds his way to the football. He'll be a depth player to start his career but he could develop into more with NFL coaching.

PLAYER NOTES

Was a 3-star recruit (per 24/7 Sports) from Mililani High School in Mililani, Hawaii. He was lightly recruited and had offers from Portland State and Hawaii but he committed to Hawaii. After playing 35 games for the Rainbow Warriors, he transferred to UCLA. He played and started 26 straight games for the Bruins. His younger brother, Sergio, plays offensive line for Hawaii. Competed at the 2024 Shrine Bowl.
